A LIFE IN THE BALANCE

A LIFE IN THE BALANCE

When a human life hovers in the balance and all the resources of surgical science are unstintingly concentrated to save, then we fully realize what a Hospital is, what it indeed stands for. But when governing bodies meet to discuss supplies they are forced, by ever present financial problems, to weigh the issue between quality and economy. Out of the needs of that conflict the service given by J. H. Bounds has prospered and grown. It is based upon the Stethos standard of un-deviating quality. It offers a double economy—through the durability of quality and by the meticulous care taken in compiling the J. H. Bounds price lists.

NURSING UNIFORMS

Our made-to-measure department is a unique and pioneer service. There is no mass production in the Stethos factory; each job is individually carried out by specialists from a wonderful range of materials. J. H. Bounds is often commissioned to design new uniforms and institution garments.

OPERATING THEATRE UNIFORMS

J. H. Bounds, after long and patient research, introduced the cornflower blue and bottle green shades for the Operating Theatre. Since the long-felt and expressed needs of surgeons for restful colours have at last been carried out, these special Theatre Uniforms have met with an enthusiastic response.

J. H.
BOUNDS

BANDAGE CLOTHS

"Stethos" Bandage Cloths constitute a range of specialities precisely answering every hospital need. The materials for orthopaedic work have been highly commended. Quality B.M.14 "Book Muslin" is commended in a standard work on dislocations and fractures. Every other type of bandage textiles supplied in highest quality.

HOSPITAL BEDDING

"Stethos" Bedding equipment has long established a reputation for its attention to modern ideas. J. H. Bounds anticipated the new feeling for colour in the wards. The "Stethos" guaranteed fully shrunk blankets are used in the largest hospitals and stand the severest tests of wear and endurance. Certified by the Institute of Hygiene.

STETHOS SHOES

"Stethos" shoes represent comfort for the nurse on duty. They are specially designed and made for J. H. Bounds to a specification drawn up to meet a nurse's needs. Special arch supports and shock-proof cuban heels safeguard the feet from fatigue and strain. But to this is added a touch of smartness and style.

HOSPITAL LAW NOTES

By W. E. C. BAYNES, M.A., LL.M.

of the Inner Temple, Barrister-at-Law,
Hon. Legal Adviser to The British Hospitals Association

The book deals with practically every legal or semi-legal point on which Secretaries of Hospitals have asked for information during several years past, and there is reason to hope that it may contain the answers to most of the legal problems that Secretaries ordinarily meet with in practice.

The subjects are arranged alphabetically and fully indexed to facilitate reference.

Press References

"This book should be one of the working tools of any hospital administrator, whether member of a committee or executive officer."—The Times.

"They cover almost every conceivable legal or semi-legal difficulty which a hospital secretary is likely to encounter. . . . The notes on road accident patients, on the recovery of income-tax under subscribers' seven-year covenants, and on liability for negligence are good instances of the clear and concise help which Mr. Baynes offers to his readers. The secretaries of hospitals and similar institutions who buy his little book will get good value."—The Lancet.

"It is difficult not to use extravagant superlatives in expressing one's admiration of this book. . . . No hospital secretary should be without it, and it should be worth almost its weight in Treasury Notes to proprietors of private hospitals and nursing homes, though of course it does not deal with the legal problems which are peculiar to their status."

British Medical Journal.

"This is a book which has long been needed. We desire to congratulate Mr. Baynes on the excellence of these notes which are characterized by accuracy throughout. They show a practical acquaintance with the law on the subjects dealt with, and no doubt this book will soon be in great demand. It certainly ought to have a long and useful career before it. Meantime it has our warmest recommendation."—The Medical Times.

"Beneath its unassuming title this book hides a mine of information for the hospital officer. One is struck by the simplicity of its language and by the avoidance of legal phraseology whenever possible. . . . The book should also be of value to any member of the legal profession whose practice brings him into contact with hospitals."—The Hospital.

"Of very great practical value to everyone connected with hospitals or with nursing and convalescent homes or similar institutions. It is a book which can be thoroughly recommended to anyone who is interested in the legal side of hospital work and management. Its accuracy can be vouched for."

The Nursing Times.

Bedtime Story

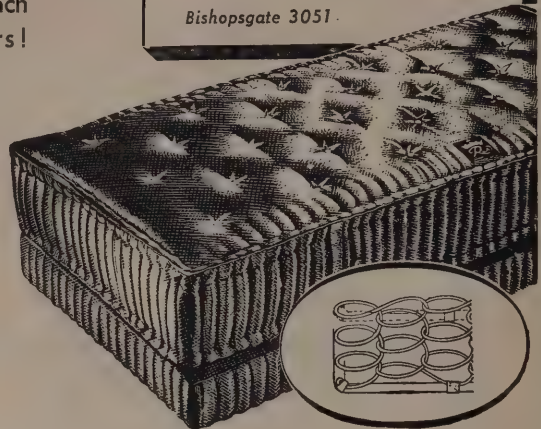

It may be told at midnight or at midday . . . when each one of the 24 hours is "bedtime." In such conditions, comfort means everything to the patient, practical bedding is important to the Hospital. No mattress meets this dual demand quite so well as the 'Rex'—the secret being INTERWOVEN SPRINGING—each individual spring reinforced by four other springs for supreme comfort, strength, resistance and resilience. Each spring unit is guaranteed for 5 years!

SOMNUS SANATOR MATTRESS

Most hospital beds are occupied throughout the whole of the day, every day, and nearly every week. Unlike the household mattress used only a third of the time, there is no period of 'natural' recovery, and less opportunity for reversal or airing. Thus, the inherent resilience and in-built ventilation of Somnus mattresses make them ideal for Hospital and Institution use. Our 30 years' experience in producing this kind of overlay, together with constant experiment and research, have resulted in perfection both in construction and materials.

At last! A NON-CAUSTIC DETERGENT with a three-in-one action!

DYMEX, the new Triple-Action Detergent, is made on a new principle . . . entirely NON-CAUSTIC. More effective, more economical, safer than any other detergent, acting in these three remarkable ways at once:

1. DYMEX washes Dishes and Glassware better, brighter!
Deposits no cloudy lime film on the surface of glass or crockery. Contains a special ingredient to overcome water hardness.
2. DYMEX sterilizes more thoroughly!
Is highly germicidal . . . leaves dishes and glassware 100 per cent clean and sterile.
3. DYMEX prevents lime scale in jets, pipes, machines!
Result: higher pressures . . . more positive cleaning . . . no time or money wasted in cleaning machines.

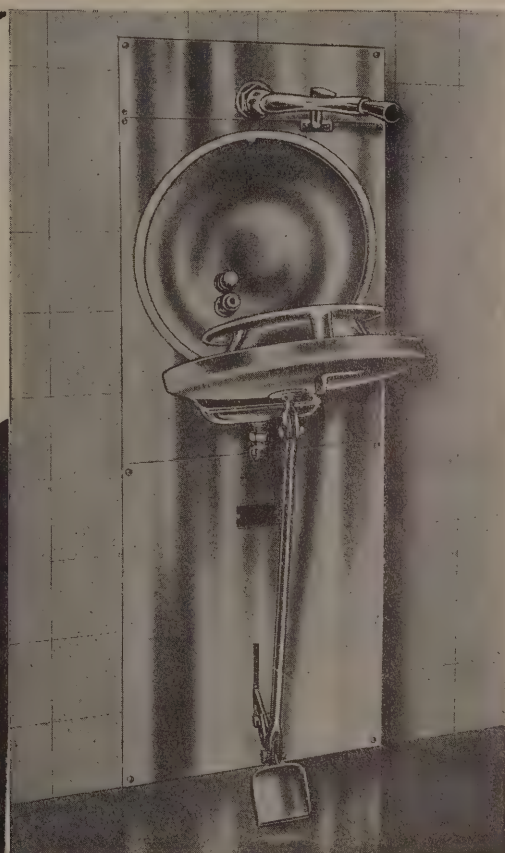

... AND ... DYMEX is SAFE! Being non-caustic, DYMEX can neither blister hands nor damage clothing. Send for a FREE trial supply of DYMEX, use it for a week, then compare results and decide for yourself!

ANAESTHETICS

OF OUTSTANDING VALUE BY MAY & BAKER

FOR GENERAL ANAESTHESIA

* CYCLONAL SODIUM INTRAVENOUSLY for induction, short basal narcosis and total anaesthesia, is of low toxicity: untoward effects and contra-indications are few. Induction is smooth and easy; sleep ensues within 15 to 60 seconds, with complete elimination of the stage of excitement.

VINESTHENE BY INHALATION is of particular value in short anaesthesia or as an adjuvant when additional muscular relaxation is desired. Freedom from post-operative nausea or vomiting and from post-anaesthetic pulmonary complications enables this drug to be used with particular success for administration to children.

CHLOROFORM AND ETHER

by May & Baker are products of the highest quality, prepared by a process which eliminates the usual impurities. Both these preparations satisfy the most stringent requirements of the British and foreign pharmacopoeias.

FOR LOCAL ANAESTHESIA

* PLANOCAINE PARENTERALLY

for local, regional and spinal anaesthesia in general and dental surgery, is less toxic than cocaine, though equally effective, and is non-habit forming. It may also be used by the Leriche method for the treatment of sprains.

* SCUROFORM SURFACE APPLICATION for the alleviation of pain, is valuable for certain minor procedures in general surgery, gynaecology, proctology, venereology, stomatology, and dental surgery. It is a practically non-toxic local anaesthetic for surface application.

FOREWORD

By the Rt. Hon. MALCOLM MACDONALD

Minister of Health

I AM glad to have the opportunity of saying a word of appreciation of the "Hospitals Year-Book." It has long been familiar to those of us whose concern is with the hospitals and their related services as something much more than a standard work of reference, offering as it does a general review each year of hospital achievement and a pointer to future development.

This issue of the "Year-Book" comes out in grave and eventful times, when the hospital organisation of the country has been profoundly affected. We all share the same regret at the inevitable dislocation of normal hospital progress which the war involves, and the same gratitude to the hospitals and all concerned for the whole-hearted way in which they have co-operated in adapting the system to the new circumstances. Whatever demands the future may bring, I have no doubt that the hospital workers and all those engaged in related work will continue to respond vigorously and unreservedly.

Malcolm MacDonald

Ministry of Health, Whitehall, S.W.1.

June, 1940.

THE Editorial Committee of the "Hospitals Year-Book" would express its regret that it has not been able to issue the "Hospitals Year-Book" for 1940 at an earlier date, as at one time it confidently hoped to do. The outbreak of War in September is, of course, one reason for this late issue—other things besides the "Hospitals Year-Book" have suffered from this external cause over which the Editorial Committee had no control.

Another reason is an internal one. For some time past the Committee has been endeavouring to find a means of publishing earlier, and so bringing financial and statistical details of the great majority of the hospitals dealt with in the "Year-Book" nearer the date of their issue. The chief difficulty has been the varying accounting years of the 934 hospitals outside the London area with which the "Hospitals Year-Book" deals. The Committee and the Editor have made repeated efforts to persuade those hospitals which have other accounting periods than the Calendar year to change their dates to the Calendar year. In October 1937 Lord Donoughmore, as Chairman of the Committee of the Central Bureau of Hospital Information, personally signed a letter addressed to each of the Chairmen of those hospitals who used years other than the Calendar year—in number about 200—urging them to adopt the Calendar year and so by synchronisation of period make the work of the "Hospitals Year-Book" of more value to those who consult it, and hasten the date of publication—at the same time minimising the work of the Editor and his staff. As a result of this appeal 88 of these hospitals have agreed to adopt the Calendar year, leaving a balance of 124 who, following a Resolution of the Editorial Committee, automatically, and after full notice given them, become ineligible for inclusion in future editions of the "Year-Book" until they adopt the Calendar year as the basis of their accounts and statistics.

The Committee is convinced that it has adopted the right policy in dealing with this problem, though, naturally, it regrets that there should be so large a number of non-conformers. It feels, however, that time will progressively reduce this number to an insignificant total, when these non-conformers realise what they have lost by neglecting to accept the suggestion of Lord Donoughmore and the persistent pressure of the Committee.

WOOLRYCH PEROWNE,

Chairman of the Editorial Committee of the "Hospitals Year-Book."

THE HOSPITAL YEAR.

REVIEW BY THE EDITOR.

OWING to reasons given later the review of the work and expenditure of the Voluntary Hospitals is confined to those of them which send in their Reports and which conform to certain minimum conditions in the way in which they present their accounts. The result of such a restriction has been the exclusion of the figures of 213 institutions containing 10,482 beds from the statistical tables.

In the hospitals the figures of which appear in our Tables,

1,399,026 In-patients and
6,505,552 Out-patients

were treated during the year 1938.

These totals, in spite of the restrictions alluded to, represent an increase of 11,662 In-patients and 84,535 Out-patients over the year 1937.

During the year 1938, 1,359 beds were added to the Voluntary System—a figure which approximates very closely to the average taken out over a number of years, namely 1,500.

The Finances of the Voluntary Hospitals for 1938 may be summarised as follows :—

Received	£18,549,662
Spent	£18,826,969
Deficit	£277,307

This is the first deficit in a ten-year period. Prior to the year 1929 the figures were taken out on a less comprehensive basis. The actual figures are as follows :—

1929 Surplus	858,021
1930 „	742,348
1931 „	607,671
1932 „	746,097
1933 „	922,899
1934 „	1,453,382
1935 „	1,143,056
1936 „	513,525
1937 „	487,763

London has been much harder hit than the Provinces. Its deficit in 1937 of £63,025 rose in 1938 to £713,468.

In the Provinces the situation as a whole is not abnormal. In 1937 there was a surplus of £393,728 which fell in 1938 to £307,570.

In Scotland there is an actual increase in the surplus, viz., from £118,764 in 1937 to £184,244 in 1938.

If we restrict observation to the large Medical School Hospitals we find that in London nine out of the twelve Hospitals had deficits totalling £76,576; and that three had surpluses totalling £43,959, leaving a net deficit of £32,617.

In the Provinces out of the thirteen large Medical School Hospitals five had deficits totalling £51,772 (of this considerably more than half occurred in one town) and eight had surpluses totalling, £60,451, leaving a net surplus of £8,679.

How serious is the effect of the exclusion of the figures of so many hospitals owing to non-compliance with the Revised Uniform System of Hospital Accounts, can be seen from the following estimate of their work and finances :—

In-Patients	113,000
Out-Patients	300,000
Income	£1,480,000
Expenditure	£1,380,000

The Position of Voluntary Hospitals in Relation to Industrial Accidents.

The position of the Voluntary Hospitals in relation to industrial accidents is most unsatisfactory. They expend annually, in giving treatment to workmen injured in industry, many thousands of pounds of which they are unable to recover more than a very small proportion.

To understand this state of affairs it is necessary to refer briefly to the history of the Voluntary Hospitals.

In their earliest days they were closely associated with religious practices; later they became purely charitable institutions supported by the rich and providing only for the sick poor. During the last few decades they have been passing rapidly into a third stage. Side by side with their charitable work they now provide a service for those who can afford to defray a part or the whole of the cost of treatment.

During the first part of the exclusively charitable period neither the treatment nor the conditions under which it was provided were such as to arouse desire on the part of members of the self-supporting classes to seek admission to hospitals when they were injured or fell sick. Owing, however, to the fact that in them were treated large numbers of patients and that their staffs had, therefore, opportunities for observation, research, and specialisation denied to General

Practitioners, hospitals became centres of medical and surgical progress and skill.

In course of time the anomaly arose that when stricken with sickness and accident the indigent and the derelict enjoyed better chances of recovery than the self-supporting and the rich. Had there been at that time any Body competent to advise how best to rectify this anomaly, it is possible that steps might have been taken to build, equip, and staff hospitals for those able to pay for hospital treatment. Nothing of this kind, however, happened, and the Voluntary Hospitals, priding themselves on their ever-open door and on their reception of accidents at all times of the day and night, began to receive in constantly increasing numbers members of the self-supporting classes.

The implications of this extension of service were not realised at the time; indeed, but for the exigencies of Finance, it may be questioned whether they would be fully realised to-day.

Be that as it may, the Legislature has established a principle covering responsibility in the case of certain types of illness and accident. In the case of industrial accidents, Acts of Parliament have placed responsibility for their consequences upon industry. It is true that so far the Legislature has limited the responsibility of industry to paying partial compensation for loss of wages. The exclusion of hospital treatment, however, rests upon no logical foundation, for there is no consequence so immediate and so vital as the need for medical and surgical treatment. The limitation so imposed is due, partly at any rate, to the fact that at the time when the Compensation Acts were passed the workmen injured in industry were accustomed to get medical and surgical treatment free in the Voluntary Hospitals, the doors of which had been thrown open to a far wider section of the community than that for which they were originally established.

No complete statistics are available of the cost to the Hospitals of treatment of industrial accidents, but an estimate, based upon returns covering 267 Hospitals, gives the following figures :—

		Number of patients treated.	Cost.
In-patients	...	37,000	£287,000
Out-patients	...	361,000	140,000
		<hr/> 398,000	<hr/> £427,000

The main portion of this cost is met by the Voluntary Hospitals out of their ordinary resources. It is true that some of the Insurance Companies have appreciated the benefits to be derived from prompt and efficient treatment of injuries resulting from accidents and have made special arrangements with the local Hospital for such treatment in those cases where the risk has been insured by them. But these instances are rare and must be treated as exceptions to the general rule. They are usually confined to special hospitals, e.g., orthopædic, and it is the Mutual Associations rather than the Insurance Companies that enter into this kind of arrangement. The reason is that the Mutual Associations, which are virtually associations of employers, benefit directly from any shortening of the period of disablement, whereas the Insurance Companies have no great interest, from a strictly business point of view, in the results of hospital treatment.

There are also instances where the employer has an arrangement with the local Hospital for the treatment of his injured employees, but here again the exception proves the rule. These special arrangements with employers are few and far between, and are usually confined to some of the larger industrial enterprises.

Little can be obtained from the injured workman himself, for he is usually quite unable to make any payment towards the cost of his treatment. The weekly compensation he receives is about half his normal earnings, and on this he frequently has to support a family. The Hospitals can only feel entirely justified in pressing for payment of their accounts on those comparatively rare occasions when an action for damages is brought at Common Law. The cost of treatment can then be included, with the workman's consent, in his claim for damages; if the action is successful it will be paid by the person held responsible for the accident.

The matter is one of sufficient immediate financial importance to the Voluntary Hospitals in which 90 per cent. of industrial accident cases are treated. It assumes a far graver aspect when attention is directed to the future. The accident rate is bound to rise because of the intensification of production, rationalisation methods, the pressure and strain of war-time conditions and the increase in the total number of people employed.

Three separate Committees have expressed the view that hospitals should be relieved of the cost of treating these accidents.

The Holman Gregory Committee, appointed by the Home Office to enquire into the system of compensation for injuries to workmen, expressed themselves quite unequivocally: "It is now a universally recognised principle," they said, "that a man injured in trade should be a charge upon industry."

The Cave Committee, appointed by the Ministry of Health to enquire into the financial position of Voluntary Hospitals, were almost equally explicit. They expressed the view that hospitals should be relieved of the cost of treatment of industrial accident cases.

The Rehabilitation Committee refrained from expressing a definite opinion because of the limitation of their terms of reference, and because a consideration of the matter by the Royal Commission shortly to be set up might be anticipated.

When dealing, however, with the subject of Road Accident cases the Rehabilitation Committee recognised, by implication, the principle that the hospitals should be relieved of the cost of treatment for accidents the responsibility for which rested on others.

Several methods of reimbursing the hospitals have been suggested. The one least open to objection from the point of view of the Voluntary Hospitals is by an extension of the Workmen's Compensation Acts. It has the merit of simplicity and of introducing no new principle of law. It is the method advocated by the British Hospitals Association as that least likely to endanger the status which they have enjoyed since their establishment.

The Royal Commission on Workmen's Compensation has presented an opportunity to the Voluntary Hospitals of stating their case. A recommendation from such a body that the Workmen's Compensation Acts should be so amended as to include a provision covering the cost of treatment in hospital would go far towards securing the necessary Act of Parliament.

If this opportunity is not turned to advantage by the hospitals they may find that it will be several decades before another occurs.

Rehabilitation.

The Final Report of the Inter-Departmental Committee on the Rehabilitation of Persons Injured by Accidents was issued in 1939. Its findings are of profound importance and should be the subject of consideration by the Board of Management of every hospital, no matter what the size of the institution for which that Board may be responsible. It deals with a subject that can be understood by every layman and with a type of accident of which every hospital has experience. Seldom has such clear guidance been given on any matter connected with the treatment of the sick. Unless steps are taken to put its recommendations into effect, with as little delay as possible, a heavy responsibility will lie on those who occupy the hospital field and whose duty it is to take the lead.

"We find," the Report says, "that the system which was universal until a comparatively recent date and still prevails to a great extent in the hospitals of the country, by which fractures are treated in the general surgical wards and under the general surgical routine, is gravely defective and that a radical change of method is necessary."

(The italics are ours.)

Present conditions stand thus condemned.

"The most authoritative surgical opinion of the country," the Report states in another passage, "is agreed in recommending the institution of special Fracture Services throughout the country. The same view is taken by the Association that represents the British Hospitals. In a number of hospitals such services have already been instituted, and the unanimous testimony of those who have been working them is that periods of disability are shortened and improved results are obtained."

(The italics are ours.)

There is no disagreement as to the remedy.

"Such services should be based on three principles:—

- (a) All fractures (except head) should be segregated in a single Department which would provide for both in-patients and out-patients.
- (b) The services should be operated and controlled by a single team under a surgeon-in-charge.
- (c) The treatment should be continued until restoration of working capacity has been effected to the fullest possible extent.

"The organisation of an efficient Fracture Service therefore should provide for both the stages into which the treatment falls:—

- (a) The surgical treatment for securing the union of the broken bone.
- (b) The treatment by physio-therapy or remedial exercises or both for restoring the functional activity of the broken member.

"The first stage calls for a surgical team under a surgeon-in-charge experienced in treatment of fractures, a nursing staff trained in fracture work, a radiographic service and a record-keeping staff.

"The necessary provision in these two respects—staff and accommodation—can in many, probably most, cases to a large extent be made by a rearrangement of existing hospital services, and accommodation. Some additions to staff, however, will be necessary in most cases, and in some extension of accommodation by new building.

"The requirements of the second stage will, as regards the physio-therapy, be usually met by the existing hospital physio-therapy service, but as regards the provision for remedial exercises will call for a great extension of existing facilities. In most hospitals, at present, the provision is very inadequate, in many non-existent."

There is here clear guidance as to the method—largely a development of facilities already in existence—to be followed.

THE HOSPITAL YEAR

"The standard of efficiency reached in a Fracture Service will depend primarily on the detailed supervision and direction by the surgeon-in-charge of the treatment throughout both stages. This will involve his giving much more time to the work than is usually given by the visiting surgeon of a hospital, and if the best men are to be secured for the work, a substantial honorarium may have to be paid for their services. This has been found necessary in the case of some Fracture Clinics already established."

In view of that which is at stake, an honorarium, however substantial, cannot be allowed to stand in the way of providing the service.

One paragraph only in the Report is italicised:—

"We recommend that active measures should now be taken to procure the establishment of efficient Fracture Services in all parts of the country."

War reinforces a thousandfold a recommendation regarded as urgent in time of peace.

The Report contemplates the establishment of a network of Fracture Services, covering the whole country, the result of careful planning and of adjustments to meet local needs and conditions. For this purpose consultation is urged between the Voluntary Hospitals, the Public Authorities and the various other interests concerned. Reference is made with approval to the scheme of regionalisation recommended by the Sankey Commission and to the value of regional joint councils in promoting such consultations. Indeed, had there been no delay in finding the money which Lord Sankey told the members of the British Hospitals Association at their Conference at Torquay in 1937 would be required to carry out the recommendations of his Commission, it is possible that the voluntary hospitals would have escaped some of the out-spoken criticisms of the Report on their lack of initiative.

The Report divides the hospitals into groups. In the first, it places the 34 Teaching hospitals, which deal with 25% of all the cases and which have only 14 fracture clinics of the approved pattern.

The second group, which deals with 29% of the total number of cases, includes 48 voluntary hospitals of which only 18 have fracture departments organised on the lines recommended.

In the third group of 112 hospitals no more than 27 have a properly organised fracture clinic.

"These first three groups of general hospitals together deal with nearly 76% of the cases, and the establishment of fracture departments in these hospitals would go far to solve the problem."

The fourth group of 588 hospitals, which deals with a large number of cases (36,000) is referred to as follows:—

"A certain number of these hospitals should certainly be advised not to deal with fractures at all beyond giving first aid and then sending the cases elsewhere. For the rest there must be a close liaison with the nearest large hospital with a fracture clinic. . . . We . . . think that the difficulties of dealing with the small hospitals should not be allowed to delay re-organisation in hospitals in the three other important groups in which the necessary plans offer no insuperable difficulties. And furthermore we feel convinced that if the Teaching hospitals and large City and County hospitals had well-organised fracture departments the number of cases retained for treatment at these smaller hospitals would progressively diminish."

The Report devotes a chapter to the special problem of London. On account of various important considerations the Committee were impressed with the need for working out a scheme in which both the voluntary and the municipal hospitals would find a place. In 1935 the total number of new fracture cases treated in the London hospitals was 32,572 of which 9,669 were in-patients. Of these in-patients the voluntary hospitals treated 3,799 and the municipal 5,870.

"We accordingly proposed to the Committee which represents the London Voluntary Hospitals and to the London County Council that a conference of the two bodies should be arranged with a view to the consideration of the problem as a whole and the preparation of such a scheme. Though the proposal was accepted and representatives of the two bodies have met and discussed the matter, little, if any, progress has been made; and we are afraid that one cause of this is that the voluntary hospitals of London are—not all, but many of them—lagging behind in the movement for the reorganisation of fracture treatment, when they ought—the Teaching Hospitals in particular—to be giving a lead. Of the 12 Teaching Hospitals only four have fracture services organised on the lines recommended in this Report, and of the other Voluntary Hospitals in London only two. In some, measures which go part of the way have been introduced; in the remainder little or nothing has been done. We direct attention elsewhere in this Report to the inadequate training of medical students in the treatment of fractures."

"In the meantime the Municipal Hospitals Authority has been developing its own Fracture Services. The history of the development of its Services and the present position are described in the following note which has been supplied to us by the Medical Officer of Health of the County:—

"The Council has since 1936 given particular consideration to the treatment of fractures in its hospitals."

"In that year, following the report of the British Medical Association on Fractures, a detailed investigation was made into the organisation and treatment of fractures in the general hospitals. This included a survey by Professor Hey Groves, who had expressed a desire to study fracture practice in the municipal hospitals of London."

"The investigation showed that the arrangements throughout the hospitals were generally speaking satisfactory, while Professor Hey Groves reported from his personal observations that 'the general standard of treatment of fractures is very good and compares favourably with that met with at most voluntary hospitals, even those of teaching status.'"

"The Council accordingly approved in October, 1936, 'a gradual policy of concentrating fractures in selected hospitals,' but decided that, in order that experience might be gained, cases of fracture previously admitted to three hospitals should be, in future, concentrated in one of them which should act as the fracture clinic for the group.

"Since that time, a departmental committee appointed by the Medical Officer, and consisting of members of the Council's medical staff, have examined the problem in detail and have formulated a provisional scheme for the establishment of fracture clinics in a restricted number of hospitals with a view to a gradual development of the organisation in accordance with the decision of the Council.

"In March, 1938, the Council instructed the Medical Officer of Health to confer with the London Voluntary Hospitals Committee with a view to a consideration, at a later date, of the organisation of fracture services and facilities for the treatment of injuries in the County of London. Discussions are still proceeding.

"The development of these municipal services may have important consequences for the Voluntary Hospitals, especially the Teaching Hospitals. Already, some of the Teaching Hospitals have had to face a serious falling-off in the number of fracture cases brought to them, and consequent difficulties in arranging for the instruction of their students. These difficulties are likely to become still more acute in the future, unless the Voluntary Hospitals themselves take steps to reorganise their treatment of fractures on modern lines.

"The importance and influence of the London Teaching Hospitals in the hospital services of the Metropolis, and the large part which they take in the instruction and training of the future surgeons of the country make it, in our opinion, imperative in the interests not only of the Metropolis but also of the country as a whole, that such a reorganisation should take place, and should take place quickly."

In a Report that is in no sense hostile, but on the contrary recognises the experience, the opportunities and obligations of the voluntary hospitals the contrast in the above passages are all the more disappointing. The position is clear enough.

"We believe that if a strong lead is given . . . the public appreciation of the necessity for the institution of the service we recommend and of the reduction which it would bring about in the amount of disability temporary or permanent resulting from accidents as well as from the mitigation of the consequences that flow from such disability will secure the measure of voluntary support that is needed. Should our expectations not be realised the whole position would need reconsideration, for it would mean that the Voluntary System was unable to supply the service; and if, as we think, the service is imperatively necessary there would be no alternative but direct intervention by the Public Authority national or local."

Is it too much to hope that the voluntary hospitals will boldly accept the challenge and, with as little delay as possible, see to it that in every region of the British Isles facilities for the treatment of fractures are provided as recommended in this most admirable Report?

Hospital Accounts.

In nothing have the voluntary hospitals displayed so much individualistic pertinacity, and, with less reason to support it, as in the way in which they have insisted upon setting out their annual records of work and finance.

As far back as the year 1850 a solitary administrative voice was raised in Lincolnshire urging the advantage that would accrue from the adoption of a common form, but with no success. Later, Sir Henry Burdett spent time, energy and money on the same task. It was not, however, until the establishment of King Edward's Hospital Fund for London and the introduction of grants conditional upon the adoption of a uniform system of hospital accounts, that a breach was made in this unreasoning opposition. Many of the Provincial voluntary hospitals still, however, continue to issue their annual statements of account in so many different ways as to suggest that there is either something disgraceful in uniformity or some advantage in discovering new and original fashions in which to classify expenditure.

A uniform system of presenting accounts and statistics and an adoption of the calendar year as the period of account would make it possible to publish the "Year-Book" on a date not much later than that on which the figures for London appear. Had there been this uniformity many hospitals in the Provinces would have been able to render their accounts in connection with the Emergency Hospital Scheme with comparatively little difficulty.

In this connection it may be useful to repeat some of the paragraphs from the Sankey Report, and, as systems, however uniform, require to be modified from time to time and brought up to date, to draw special attention to the paragraph recommending the establishment of a Committee composed of those competent to examine and revise, from time to time, the Revised Uniform System in the light of present-day requirements.

"Ideal hospital accounting must be uniform, simple and effective: uniform, in order that comparisons of financial achievement may be readily secured between hospitals; simple, lest time, money and energy be diverted unnecessarily from the main object for which they exist; effective, in order that the accounting records in themselves and by comparison with those of other hospitals may afford a useful guide to future policy.

"A study of the 'Hospitals Year-Books' shows that this ideal has not yet been reached.

"Three groups of Tables are published, compiled from such data as are available, but these, owing to lack of uniform accounting practice throughout the system, must not only involve a great deal of research in their preparation, but also suffer in their reliability; their value is greatly diminished by the interval which elapses between the close of the financial years concerned and their publication.

"The value of all these statistics depends, however, upon their completeness, upon the reliability of the figures for the purpose of comparison and upon early publication.

THE HOSPITAL YEAR

"The measure of completeness can be gauged from the following Table :—

	1934.	1933.	1932.
Number of hospitals in the "Year-Book"	1,072	1,061	1,051
Number of hospitals giving Totals of Income and Expenditure	1,007	978	973
Number of hospitals giving Analysis of Income	1,007	978	973
Number of hospitals giving Analysis of Expenditure	874	883	890

"Comparability depends upon standardisation. This can be achieved by the universal adoption of the 'Revised Uniform System of Hospital Accounts,' either modified or not. Comparability is still further obscured by the fact that there is a large number of hospitals outside London which make no attempt to separate in-patient from out-patient expenditure.

"Upon the early publication of statistics is dependent their maximum value. In order to qualify for a grant from King Edward's Hospital Fund all hospitals in London must adopt the calendar year as their financial period and must render their audited accounts within three months of the end of the year. This incentive does not exist outside the area of London, and we find that some hospitals still adopt financial periods other than the calendar year and that after an interval of ten months there remain some fifty hospitals which have not rendered accounts for inclusion in the 'Hospitals Year-Book.' We know of no reason why the performance of London hospitals should be superior in this respect to that of the hospitals in the Provinces and Scotland.

"The 'Revised Uniform System of Hospital Accounts' is the system adopted in the year 1906 by King Edward's Hospital Fund for London, the Metropolitan Hospital Sunday Fund and the Hospital Saturday Fund. As a result of experience certain minor alterations have since been introduced in order to bring hospital accounting more into line with present-day requirements.

"Bearing in mind the need for simplicity in a system which must be appropriate both to small institutions as well as to large, we are opposed to the introduction of a complete costing system either in substitution for or running parallel with the Revised Uniform System.

"For the purposes of internal control we advocate the use of subsidiary accounts for special activities, e.g., the Laundry account of the Revised Uniform System, and of departmentalised quantity statistics as enjoined in the Revised Uniform System, but such accounts should not constitute integral parts of the main accounts.

"The Revised Uniform System of accounting for expenditure under eight main heads is a compromise between the subjective and the objective principles of classification; we do not consider that the compromise as adopted is the optimum for administrative purposes.

"As an example we find that under the present system no light whatever is thrown upon the true cost of the Nursing Department of a hospital, all the components of such cost being distributed over several heads, such as Salaries, Provisions and Domestic, where they are merged indistinguishably with other similar expenditure. Information as to the cost of nursing services, essential in their nature and material in their financial incidence, would be of immense value not only to administration but also for the purpose of comparison with other hospitals.

"A modification of the Revised Uniform System to provide for the disclosure of this and other expenditure which should lend itself to ready analysis would appear to us to be of advantage, but we hesitate to submit a considered recommendation for its adoption, for it is clear that the element of simplicity particularly desirable in hospital accounting would be reduced. Believing, however, that modification in the Revised Uniform System would increase the value of the statistical records and hence the efficiency of administrative control, but being, as we are, uncertain of the reactions from their adoption, we recommend that the Central Council should establish a Committee, composed of those competent to advise upon these two aspects of the problem, to strike a proper balance of relative advantage, and to examine afresh the Revised Uniform System in the light of present-day requirements."

The Importance of Statistics.

It is not, indeed, to our credit as a nation nor helpful to progress that almost invariably when matters are brought up for consideration great difficulty should be found in getting at basic facts.

"If," the Report of the Interdepartmental Committee on the Rehabilitation of Persons Injured by Accidents states, "it has been difficult to obtain accurate information with regard to the numbers treated it had been found even more difficult to obtain information as to the results of treatment."

It may be natural enough that individual hospitals, conscious of the fact that they are doing good work, should find difficulty in appreciating the advantage of spending money on keeping records for which they see no immediate purpose. Records necessary to enable services of national importance to be improved might well be paid for. There is a very good case for a grant from the Government towards the cost of keeping records useful for purposes outside the immediate work of the hospital or the institution concerned, and such a grant could in no possible way whatever be regarded as dangerous to voluntary effort.

A striking instance of the shortsightedness of a failure to keep records of work done is given in the Report of the same Committee. The Committee approached the National Confederation of Employers Organisations and the Trades Union Congress General Council. The National Confederation assured the Committee of their interest in the Fracture Scheme, not merely on the ground of the financial effects that might accrue from the shortening of the period of disability from industrial accidents, but also on broader general grounds. The Confederation's representatives, however, felt that the case for the reorganisation of Fracture Services in hospitals had not fully been proved; that the matter was still in the experimental stage; that comparative statistics should be collected by the Committee, on a wider basis, of the results obtained from the old and the new systems respectively. The Committee observed that no doubt such comparison, if it could be made, might be convincing in one direction or the other. Unfortunately, the data were not available, the Voluntary Hospitals having kept no records of the cases treated which showed the length of the period of treatment and the final result. Many of the hospitals had found it a matter of great difficulty to extract from the hospital records even the bare number of fracture cases treated in reply to the Committee's request for that information.

The Sankey Report devoted a chapter to Patients' Records and their importance. It said:—

“The keeping of Patients' Records is an important part of hospital service. Records aid research, are of benefit to future sufferers and help in the prevention of disease. Records, also, may be at any time of essential importance as in medico-legal cases. Many hospitals already keep records, but it is desirable that the practice should be universal. Records should be of a uniform type, complete and readily accessible.

“It is impossible to exaggerate the advantage to patients themselves, to research and to the public health generally, of Disability Records as complete as possible.”

It is unfortunate that an important factor in enabling the National Confederation of Employers' Organisations—an organisation vitally interested in the matter—to come to a decision should have been lacking.

“Pay Bed” Costs.

It is generally agreed that hospitals in presenting their accounts and statistics to the public should separate the figures relating to beds for paying or private patients from those relating to patients in general wards. Where a pay bed section is a distinct department of a hospital, with possibly its own kitchen etc., separation involves a very small amount of estimation. Where the beds devoted to paying patients are so intimately associated with the main institution as to be hardly distinguishable from the ward beds the separation, though not really difficult, demands some time and trouble.

The separation of figures in this way is undoubtedly desirable, and in the next issue of the “Hospitals Year-Book” it is proposed to introduce a section specially devoted to pay bed costs. The section will be confined to the figures of those hospitals which either publish the necessary details in their reports or which are able to supply them on application.

FINANCIAL REVIEW

By SIR CHARLES HARRIS, G.B.E., K.C.B.

(Late Permanent Head of the Finance Department, War Office.)

Hon. Financial Consultant to the Central Bureau of Hospital Information.

The Editor's Review of the Hospital Year 1938 gives the most prominent features of the year's finance, as well as of the work done; but in any attempt to deduce trends by comparing the results with those of earlier years, account must be taken of the important changes in the basis of the figures of the Tables. In 1937 the Bureau had at last found itself compelled to make a stand against the intolerable lack of punctuality in accountancy on the part of a considerable number of hospitals (not all small), with the result that 75 hospitals which had figured in the Tables of 1936 were excluded as too late in those of 1937, while on the other hand 18 hospitals which had been too late in 1936 were in time for inclusion in 1937. Nothing could be more futile from a statistical point of view than to produce elaborately compiled figures relating to different collections of hospitals for different periods of time. Table 3 (Income and Expenditure on Maintenance Account), as compiled, showed 1008 hospitals in 1936 and 951 in 1937, but only 933 hospitals in all appeared in both years; and whereas the crude figures of the Table indicated a growth of £532,000 in Income and of £605,000 in Expenditure, by a somewhat elaborate rectification of the figures, comparing like with like (the same 933 hospitals in both years), I showed in my Report that the real figures were Income growth £832,000 and Expenditure growth £980,000 (nearly twice the crude figure).

Many years' experience of the futility of seeking to improve the Year-Book statistics by patient appeal to the Boards of Voluntary Hospitals had shown the necessity of a new approach to the problem, the importance of which had been strongly insisted upon by Lord Sankey's Commission—which, be it noted, was not an intrusion of external busy-bodies, but an effort of the Voluntary Hospitals at self-reform through their own British Hospitals' Association—and a final attempt to introduce a standard year of account (the Calendar Year) by personal appeal from Lord Donoughmore to the Chairman of each non-conforming Board had met with a most disappointing reception. Notice was therefore given to all concerned by the Circular Letter of 27th February, 1939 (printed in the Editor's Review in the Year-Book published in that year), that in order to secure inclusion of figures in the next and future Year-Books, a certain minimum degree of uniformity in accountancy must be reached; and the present Year-Book shows what advance has in fact been made. As the Editor's Review shows, in spite of all warnings, out of 1092 hospitals in the directory no less than 213 hospitals containing 10,482 beds have failed to send in figures fit for inclusion in the Tables, of which 76 hospitals (4273 beds) have sent in none at all.

Coming to Finance, the Editor's figures for the increased deficit in London (£63,025 to £113,508) are for Total Receipts and Expenditure, with no change in the number of Hospitals; the fall in the Provinces from a surplus of £393,724 in 1937 to one of £307,570 in 1938 accompanies a reduction of the number of hospitals whose figures are included from 656 to 615 (no such rectification as that above mentioned for 1936 and 1937 having been attempted); and the increased Scottish surplus in 1938 from £118,764 in 1937 to £184,244 is the more remarkable that it accompanies a reduction in the number of hospitals included from 107 to 78. Reference to Table 7 (Legacies) shows that it is due to an increase of Earmarked Legacies from £81,000 to £246,000, which raised Scotland's Total Legacies from £480,000 to £585,000, while the growth of Maintenance Expenditure (with 29 hospitals less in the count) was only £90,000.

The Editor's figures of Income £1,480,000, Expenditure £1,380,000, for the total finances of the numerous hospitals which for one reason or another do not appear in the Tables (including the 76 which have sent in no figures at all) though not without value as showing the scale on which default still takes place, can only be regarded as conjectural, so large an element of estimate is necessarily present.

These main variations (except that in London)

are thus so largely attributable to the "purging" of the Tables by exclusion of non-conforming hospitals, that it has seemed to me more profitable to concentrate attention on the purging itself than on the crude (unrectified) figures given in the Tables, deductions drawn from which might well be unsound.

It will be found that, in order that no hospital may be left in doubt as to the cause of its exclusion from the Tables, not only is an alphabetical list given immediately before Table I, with signs indicating the cause in each case, but in the later Tables (10-15) dealing with individual hospitals, against the unfortunately frequent blank spaces where figures are missing, footnotes are again inserted showing where the fault lies. It is to be hoped that study with the help thus given will bring home to the Boards of the Hospitals concerned how easy it would be in the great majority of cases, by a moderate infusion of the team spirit, to remove their names from the non-conforming list. Instances were given, in the letter of 27th February, 1939, above referred to, where difficulty was at the outset supposed to arise, from a misconception of what the adoption of the Calendar Year would involve in the arrangements of Hon. Auditors with pressure of seasonal work, etc., but when the misconception was explained, the objection was nevertheless persisted in, showing that there was no effective desire to conform. It is altogether inadequate for a Hospital Board asked, in the Bureau's annual questionnaire, to give its average annual costs (analysed) for In-patients and Out-patients respectively, to allow its secretary or auditor to reply "statistics not available" or some similar phrase, without any attempt to do what every hospital accountant in London and the great majority elsewhere do without difficulty under the full printed instructions to be found in the Revised Uniform System of accounts for Voluntary Hospitals. But the long-delayed creation of an organised body where hitherto there have only been individual units, is now on the way in the regional schemes already operating in progressive localities, and it cannot be expected that hospitals remaining wedded to out-of-date traditions will share the benefits coming to those which show willingness to move with the times.

Though the standard year of account and the obligation to render accounts to the Bureau by a fixed (and advancing) date have been treated as separate questions, they are, of course, closely connected in one way. The completely successful

London scheme, based on the Calendar Year, allows the first three months for the completion by the individual hospital of its last year's accounts and the rendering of them to the King's Fund, which has then the early spring and summer months for the preparation of its annual publications and the autumn for determining and carrying out the action to be taken on the results shown. Any irregularity in the 12 months' period, if permitted, would endanger the time-table and delay the whole year's work; and in the same way the acceleration, so urgently required, in the date of publication of the Year-Book, can only be secured by the uniform adoption of the Calendar Year of account and an acceleration (by stages, but in total considerable) of the preparation and audit of the accounts of the several units. Owing to the war and to other unforeseen occurrences, this (1940) instalment of the acceleration of the date of publication has not been realised; but every hospital outside London should do its utmost to press forward the completion of its 1939 accounts at the earliest possible date.

The question of Pay Bed costs, which had been for some time above the horizon, was brought to the fore somewhat unexpectedly by a notice in the Statistical Summary of King Edward's Fund for 1938, that the figures relating to pay beds (where available) had been eliminated from the Tables showing cost per bed, in an attempt to show as closely as can be ascertained the cost of General Ward beds. A note to Table 4 (London) of the Year Book explains why it was not practicable to attempt any similar elimination of pay bed expenditure in this Issue, even for the London hospitals; and the Editor announces that the next Issue will contain a section devoted to the pay bed costs of 1939, in London or elsewhere, so far as they are readily available. For so important a new feature, and especially to readers who have not the Statistical Summary in their hands, a little further information may be welcome.

The Statistical Summary has hitherto given its results in two sets of Tables, the first set giving A (Income) and B (Expenditure) for 16 separate Groups of Hospitals, with a summary for the whole 145, under the prescribed heads of the Revised Uniform System. Under A, pay bed income was included under "Services Rendered; from Patients and their friends"; while under B the corresponding expenditure was included, indistinguishably with other expenditure of like kinds, under the 8 prescribed heads. The second set of Tables gave, under the same 16 Groups, sundry details about patients and beds and, for In-patients and Out-patients separately, under the prescribed 8 heads, Costs (a) for an occupied bed for the year and (b) per 1000 out-patient attendances. Hospitals with pay beds carried a distinctive mark, but there was no separation of expenditure for them.

In the first part of the 1938 Summary, the pay bed income has a column to itself in Table A, as has the corresponding expenditure in Table B, the latter amount being taken out of the total of ordinary expenditure under the 8 prescribed heads, in one sum, not in analysed form. But in the second part, showing analysed costs per occupied bed and per 1000 out-patient attendances respectively, the figures throughout are now confined to General Ward patients, those relating to Pay Beds dropping out altogether. In this (London's experimental) year, very few hospitals have succeeded in the elaborate isolation of General Ward expenditure on the lines desired, and there is no more to be said; but it is important to notice that the scheme, however perfectly carried out, does not attempt to exhibit the cost of a pay bed for a year or any part of a year, either in a named London hospital, or as a general average for London pay beds. The Year-Book proposal for 1939, on the contrary, is designed to give (as far as it may go) the weekly costs of pay beds, without any attempt to give figures for General Ward beds only. The underlying idea of the Year-Book, to present the figures of all Voluntary Hospitals, whether metropolitan or other, in readily comparable form, will require some further consideration when the experimental periods for pay beds are over.

The Nuffield Provincial Hospitals Trust, through its Provincial Hospitals Regionalisation Council, is already at work to increase the number of areas operating the machinery which the Trust exists to promote, in addition to those which had experimentally taken such action for themselves since the Sankey Commission reported. Among these older regions should be mentioned Birmingham, Liverpool, Manchester, and Sheffield of which the historical origins and development, by no means uniform in plan, will be found described in this Issue of the Year-Book. It is not (I understand) intended that there should be a "sealed pattern" Regional Council created in each area; and the second batch, now on the stocks, including Yorkshire, Northumberland and Durham, Devon and Cornwall, and Kent, will doubtless show diversity of pattern; but these areas have all formally approved the principles involved, including co-operation between Voluntary Hospitals and Public Health Authorities in co-ordinating hospital services. One feature it may be anticipated will be found universally—a permanent body (though not always with identical powers) containing representatives of Voluntary Hospitals and of Municipal and County governments, together with representatives of local Universities and other bodies which do not share the executive working of the hospital services.

The Regionalisation Scheme obviously has a very important function to perform in co-ordinating the practical work of the various hospitals, both voluntary and municipal, within each region with a view to improving the services which they render to the community. At the same time it should be recognised that the Scheme has its limitations. It would be a mistake to assume that out of these Regional Councils there could emerge a strong central body capable of determining major questions of policy. There are many subjects of importance which either of the two wings (voluntary and municipal) of the hospital service would have to consider and decide upon independently, e.g., for the Voluntaries the improvement in accounting, punctuality and despatch for which the Editor in his Review in this Issue revives the call of the Sankey Commission for a new Committee on accountancy. In this, as in other matters, the problems of the Municipals are entirely different in character and they could not be decided by a central authority of mixed composition.

In-so-far as it may be necessary to arrive at joint decisions on major issues of policy affecting both Voluntaries and Municipals these should result from consultation between the main bodies, those representing the local authorities on the one hand, and a reborn British Hospitals Association as representing the voluntary hospitals on the other.

Every experienced lay administrator of a voluntary hospital is aware of a number of questions awaiting solution. As the Sankey Report showed, the machinery of the Voluntaries for dealing with these questions has in the past been lamentably weak, and calls urgently for improvement. In part this was due to the tendency of each hospital to consider itself as an individual and independent unit. What is necessary is that each should consider itself as part of a whole and be strongly infused with the spirit of team-work.

In part, however, it is also due to defective machinery. It has always seemed to me that the voluntary hospitals should possess, particularly at times such as those through which we are passing, a strong central organisation of their own, definitely representative in character, and empowered in the last resort to transcend the purely advisory (debating-society) ideal to which the original British Hospitals Association confined itself. This strong central organisation should be able, after adequate discussion, to settle disputed points of voluntary hospital policy by majority vote. If there should be any central Fund at its disposal, from which expenditure would be involved, the trustees of such Fund would naturally have the right to withhold sanction for due cause shown. It may be said without exaggeration that in any powerful voluntary organisation, whatever its purpose, this element is somewhere to be found, coupled with the implied understanding that, once arrived at, such a majority decision will be loyally complied with. Without this proviso, the bundle of sticks simply breaks up.

REGIONALISATION

REGIONALISATION is no more than an obvious and convenient method of dealing with practical problems on a geographical basis. It is not the discovery of any particular commission or locality. Given certain conditions it follows of necessity in a society that is increasing in size and complexity. Independent local units of the same or a similar kind find themselves obliged by pressure of circumstances to combine in defence of their interests or for the promotion of their common purposes. Or it may be that a stage has been reached where centralisation has been carried too far and the process has to be reversed.

The movement towards regionalisation in the Voluntary Hospital World derives from the former of these causes. It is one which involves organisation on a considerable scale and covers extensive areas. As Lord Sankey pointed out in his speech at Torquay, two things are required if Regions and Regional Councils are to be brought into existence.

1. The constant thought and attention of public spirited men and women prepared to devote a considerable part of their lives to the problems involved, and
2. Money.

Of the former there is, fortunately for the Voluntary Hospitals, no lack. With regard to the latter, "There are," Lord Sankey added, "certain rich men in this country who can give thousands and hundreds of thousands, and to their praise they do it. I wonder whether it would be possible to ask one of these rich, generous men to come forward and set at rest the financial anxieties of those responsible for the task of regionalisation?" Lord Sankey's words have borne fruit. The gift of Lord Nuffield will stand out among many instances of generosity in the history of the Voluntary Hospitals, not only because of its magnificence, but because it comes at a time so opportune to the needs of the situation.

The following accounts of regional activity have been kindly contributed by those who have been largely responsible for the very considerable progress made. The five examples include a populous city, a university town with its surrounding country, and a widespread agricultural and moorland area with no very definite centre of population. In each, problems have been attacked with courage and considerable success, and isolated individual efforts and rivalry have been replaced by combination and the spirit of goodwill.

BIRMINGHAM HOSPITALS COUNCIL

It is not often realised that there has been a Hospitals Council in Birmingham since 1919. The representatives then being mainly from the voluntary hospitals. At that date, quoting from the objects for which the council was formed, it was acknowledged to be "manifestly desirable that a Hospital Council should be formed with a view to co-ordination and co-operation in matters of policy and working, the raising of funds, purchasing to the best advantage, the increasing of the efficiency of the hospitals, and generally for the consideration of such other matters as affect the hospitals as a whole."

The Council in 1921 appointed representatives to the local committee formed to assist the Voluntary Hospitals Commission in the distribution of the Government grant of £500,000; later in 1925 the functions of that committee (which were based on the recommendations of Lord Cave's Committee) and those of the council, were merged, and a new and more representative council was embodied. This council over a period of years quietly and effectively sought solutions to the numerous problems referred. It is worthy of record that the council in 1926 conceived the Birmingham Hospitals Contributory Scheme and also the Birmingham Hospitals Centre, the first part of which has now (1938) been completed—the Queen Elizabeth Hospital.

Following the Local Government Act, 1929, the City Council recognised the Hospitals Council as the appropriate body to be consulted for the purposes of Section 13 of that Act (now Section 182, Public Health Act, 1936), and the City Council invited the observations of the Hospitals Council on proposals made to effect the transfer of certain of the Guardians' functions to the various committees of the City Council.

In 1936 the Council was again re-formed and strengthened. Its representation was widened so as to include all the voluntary hospitals, nursing associations, contributory associations, the City Council (including the General Purposes, Public Health, Public Assistance and Education Committees), the Chamber of Commerce and kindred bodies.

The Council's functions were then extended and anticipated the recommendations of the Sankey Commission, which issued its Report in April, 1937.

The year 1938 was a busy one for the council and was of considerable importance in the City's hospital life as a whole.

Touching local authority work, matters referred by the City Council were diverse, and schemes submitted for approval by them were of some magnitude. These embraced such matters as the provision by the Public Assistance Committee of chronic sick accommodation to the extent of 300 beds, the scheme being estimated to cost £105,000, the provision of accommodation for a training school for nurses at Selly Oak Hospital, the modernisation of Dudley Road Hospital at an estimated cost of £58,845, and the revision of scales of salaries for nurses in the municipal hospitals in view of the fact that a proposed increase of such scales might adversely affect the voluntary hospitals. Finally, a matter illustrating the effectiveness of the Hospitals Council was the arrangement which the council proposed for the admission of a certain number of Public Health cases into the new Queen Elizabeth Hospital as its first patients, which had the effect of avoiding a considerable capital expenditure by the Public Health Committee on wards of a purely temporary character.

On the voluntary hospitals side, the outstanding matter referred to the Council was the question of future policy of the United Hospital Board, having regard to the impending opening of the Queen Elizabeth Hospital. This matter was considered by a special committee of the Council, now widely known as the Vernon Committee, who in order to arrive at a mature recommendation invited ladies and gentlemen closely associated with the problem to attend and give evidence. Written statements were also received and no fewer than thirteen separate bodies were consulted. The Committee had before them no less a number than seventy-three documents—some of them of considerable length and complexity. The Committee's report ran into sixteen pages and the main recommendation was that no reduction in the number of beds in use at the existing units of the United Hospital should be made until 200 to 250 beds were in use at the Queen Elizabeth Hospital; afterwards a progressive reduction in the number of beds at the Queen's Hospital should be made and that when the number of beds in use at the Queen Elizabeth Hospital reached the neighbourhood of 400, the question of closing down the Queen's Hospital as a General Hospital was to be considered. The report also took into consideration the question of such matters as casualty services, and the administration of the three units of the United Hospital, including the question of staff. Illustrating further the progress of collaboration between the local authority and the voluntary hospitals it is of more than passing interest to record that the Vernon Report was officially received and considered at a meeting of the City Council and is the first document of an outside body to be so received.

The Council also considered and approved an appeal being made by the Maternity Hospital for the sum of £125,000 to provide a new Maternity Hospital on the Hospitals Centre site, the regulation of other public appeals, reciprocal arrangements by contributory schemes, the further development of the Hospitals Centre site, new branches for the Birmingham General Dispensary, the question of income limits and numerous other diverse problems, even to the matter of assistance by the Birmingham Citizens' Society in the payment of fares to relatives in necessitous cases when visiting patients in the local hospitals.

Finally, a most important matter to which the Council have devoted a considerable amount of thought is that of regionalisation. The Council of the British Hospitals Association has, it is understood, agreed in view of the comprehensive representation and wide scope of the Birmingham Hospitals Council, that this body shall be the Regional Council for the City of Birmingham. In the course, however, of setting up Regional Councils in accordance with the Sankey Commission recommendations it has been agreed that the area covered by Birmingham shall be extended, and if present proposals are approved, this would include outlying hospitals, such as Smethwick, Sutton Coldfield, Solihull, Lichfield, Redditch, Hammerwich, Tamworth, Coventry and Stratford.

THE SOUTH-WESTERN REGION (DEVON AND CORNWALL).

Visitors go to Devon and Cornwall to take their holidays on the moors and sea coasts, geographical features which shape the course of development of both counties. This became very evident in planning regionalisation of their hospital services. Devonshire, the third largest shire, of over 1,600,000 acres, has in its centre Dartmoor of nearly 100,000 acres with a part of Exmoor in the north. Its population of 733,000 persons is therefore widely separated, and the largest concentrations are at Exeter, Plymouth and in the Torbay area. Cornwall, comprising an area of over 860,000 acres, has in its east Bodmin Moor of some 65 square miles and some 340,000 Cornish (inclusive of the Isles of Scilly) live mainly round its coasts. There the larger concentrations are in the west, but nowhere are comparable to those of industrial centres. Road and rail communications necessarily lie to the north and south of Dartmoor and along the north and south coasts of Cornwall, although ancient highways cross the bleak spaces of both Dartmoor and the Cornish moors. Any scheme which disregarded these factors could not be expected to find favour among the inhabitants with whom its success finally rests.

Although the British Hospitals Association originally grouped the counties together, there is ample evidence of the haphazard building and growth of their voluntary hospitals. The committee which the Association set up was not an active body. Meetings were infrequent and so the purpose, namely, to work out the fundamentals of hospital policy, to assist by an exchange of views and information on administrative affairs and to discuss problems of mutual interest, was defeated. If the inter-relations of hospitals were scarcely cordial, the distance separating them from London proved a conclusive deterrent to the Association's aim at breaking down too much independence and its object of promoting the adoption of a common policy. The voluntary hospitals were not alone to blame, for although the local authorities were empowered by the Local Government Act of 1929 to consult voluntary hospitals, these authorities have not collaborated to secure the best possible utilisation of hospital beds. Conditions which were already causing grave concern in thickly populated and industrial areas had scarcely become recognisable, except in one case, in these counties, where agriculture, mining and fishing are the chief occupations. Too much blame should not be attached to hospital committees, nor should local authorities appear as defaulters for failing to find successful solutions for problems which, in general, were almost non-existent. A new source of income from contributory schemes had saved their voluntary hospitals from financial difficulties until quite recently and the pinch was not really being felt where changes were so less marked. Such in short was the background when the Sankey Report was published by the Commission.

The British Hospitals Association held its Annual Meeting, 1937, at Torquay, and the Viscount Sankey explained with consummate clarity the recommendations of the report. Taking advantage of this opportunity representatives of the hospitals went to hear the outcome of the long deliberations which the Press and rumour informed them would herald a new era for voluntary hospitals. They returned home impressed that the report was a document meriting close attention, and that the systematic organisation of hospital activities could only be accomplished by rationalisation and the grouping and grading of hospitals. It was later realised that the recommendations of the Sankey Commission were drastic and called for much thought, study and investigation. Further, that they called for submergence of personal and institutional interests in favour of a unified service. Finally it was realised that the main problem of the voluntary hospitals was one of economics. The immediate outcome was the revival of the Association's activities, and meetings were again held. Hospitals discussed the first three recommendations of the Sankey Report and approved them in principle.

Then followed a stock-taking of hospital services, to find how far their gradual growth conformed with the principles laid down for key and other hospitals. Cornwall invited Mr. R. H. P. Orde, Honorary Secretary of the Association, and, with the consent of the Minister of Health, Dr. Eric Donaldson of that Ministry, to visit the county, and in due course they published a survey. Then Devonshire decided to entrust its survey to Mr. A. R. Cash, Secretary of the Prince of Wales' Hospital, Plymouth, the largest voluntary hospital in the two counties. Local authorities co-operated in supplying particulars of their work. Two types of survey thus became available for study. The Cornish, generally omitting the detail collected, gave the experts' impressions and suggested a method for adapting existing conditions to a regional scheme, with observations of a general character. The Devon survey comprised a detailed review of finances and work done. Its completeness with statistical tables, as a document for reference, will long be worth close study. The former offered wide scope for criticism by those whose opinions differed, whilst the latter was merely a statement of facts and no recommendations were put forward. The facts themselves show the anomalies which exist and which may only be put right by the adoption of some scheme for the systematic organisation, planning and development of hospitals on a regional basis. A summary of its contents, however, enables the reader to arrive quickly at its import and the use of its detailed figures. The details of the surveys are of local interest only. The time and trouble given to them proved invaluable, and certain conclusions were easily reached. Side by side with the grouping of the two counties by the British Hospitals Association an almost identical organisation was decided upon. This has been recognised as the Provisional Regional organisation. In effect at Council Meetings members scarcely distinguish between the business of the Association "Central Council" and that of the "Provisional Central Council," so close, in fact, is the identity since no major alteration in boundary for the new region had been found necessary.

Based on key hospitals, Devonshire has been sub-divided into four sub-regions, viz. Barnstaple, Exeter, Plymouth and Torbay, and Cornwall forms, as a county, the other division of the South-Western Region. Consideration of various forms of Joint Hospital Schemes given in Appendix II of the Sankey Report showed that the scheme of the "Oxford and District Joint Hospital Board" offered a model which was easily adaptable to local requirements. The South-Western Regional Council is constituted closely on these lines, but its function has not been so fully developed. Its activities in connection with the regional funds and finance has not gone further than to co-ordinate applications for grants-in-aid from local authorities to those voluntary hospitals in need of such assistance. Its meetings are held in the more important centres of the region; distances are great, and numbers of people have to give up a whole day to attend. The suggested subscriptions from hospitals to meet the cost of postage and stationery, etc., has met with only partial success. The sub-regions and Cornwall have a somewhat modified organisation with committees on which their respective hospitals and local authorities are entitled to sit with others. These make such arrangements for expenses as suit them. There is also an Advisory Committee of the Regional Council, composed of representatives of the sub-regions and Cornwall, who make their recommendations on their business to the Regional Council. Representatives also go to the Central Council of the British Hospitals Association and the Provisional Central Council has elected an accredited representative and member for Devon and Cornwall (Division 9).

The Regional Council is young and active, and, although its task is not an easy one nor capable of being accomplished all at once, signs are by no means lacking to show that there is a reasonable prospect of success if all will only pull together. Hospital committees do not all feel a duty to make the organisation effective, and powers do not seem to be vested in either the Central or Regional Councils to require the scheme to be universally complied with. Experience indicates that the Advisory Committee is well fitted to bear the brunt of the work. Here a limited number of people, really interested in hospital service, are able to discuss matters with knowledge and the attention they merit. It remains nevertheless that the final sanction lies in the Regional Council and, unless this is real, no proper progress can be hoped for. The success which attends active sub-regional committees undoubtedly encourages members in pursuing their aims. Local authority members, however, seem to find some difficulty in the compatibility of that position with their responsibilities as county councillors or members of some other local authority. The local authorities appear to question, too, the value of the regional council and its authority. Without a clear statement by the Ministry of Health they have grounds for this embarrassment and the attitude sometimes adopted is a very serious setback to the scheme. Further, it is none the less true that among both hospital committee members and local authority members there are those who distrust the whole organisation as well as those who wish it well. The principles of regionalisation are not new and have been advocated by those best qualified to know for years and have been the subject matter of more than one official document issued by interested bodies. And further, all that part of the Local Government Act relating to the systematic organisation of the Poor Law administration was an attempt at the rationalisation of these important departments of public service. The hospitals controlled by local authorities are already rationalised and are giving good service.

REGIONALISATION

It cannot be doubted that the Sankey Report meant and that public opinion is veering to the view that regionalisation of hospital services means the rationalisation and true economy of the whole of those services of the region.

Prior to the publication of the Sankey Report the grouping of Devon and Cornwall was really meaningless. Whatever may be the present shortcomings, the British Hospitals Association has aroused a hospital-minded public opinion, and real attempts, over a large part of Devon and Cornwall, are being made to give effect to the recommendations of the Sankey Commission. These recommendations concern general practitioners and their patients, and the apathetic public which has to be educated, on whom so largely rests the ultimate success of the scheme. Those engaged in the chief occupations of the two counties are not, as in industrial districts, so united by trade organisations, and this makes them "voiceless" in comparison. The support which the Press is ever ready to give by reporting meetings is both gratifying and invaluable, and confirms that their readers are interested—and everyone reads the papers. The many thousands of members of the various duly accredited contributory schemes are also concerned about the facilities at their disposal, and are perfectly well aware of deficiencies which cost them time and money to overcome and which problem it is also suggested that regionalisation would also help to solve.

In conclusion, two points deserve some reference and comment. The British Hospitals Association comprises both the voluntary hospitals of Greater London and those of the Provinces. Problems which affect the Provinces in general and the two counties in particular are very different from those of London. The "national" hospitals, teaching and special, have their urgent problems, but the far-off region is none the less concerned for the sick in its own area. If the balance between the needs of that powerful minority and the less organised, weaker majority is not nicely adjusted in the Central Council adverse criticism will be heard and will give rise to dissatisfaction. Provincial hospitals and their relations with the national hospitals in London are a matter of great importance. It would be regrettable should the former, rightly or wrongly, feel their interests were also not of paramount importance. Whilst this account of the South-Western Region was in preparation the Viscount Nuffield's generous gift of money to form the nucleus of a "Provincial Central Fund" has been announced. In the absence of further information any consideration of its bearing on the matters above referred to can be speculative only. One great obstacle, however, which is generally admitted may now be finally removed. The crucial difficulties arising from the lack of adequate finances and the disparity underlying the relationship between voluntary and local authority hospitals are on their way to a happy end. The Minister of Health has emphasised the importance of this gift, and many will sincerely hope that the spade-work done by the British Hospitals Association will now finally succeed in full measure.

(The above Contribution has been sent in by one who has given much time and thought to the problems of an area in which local patriotisms play a considerable part.)

LIVERPOOL ASSOCIATED VOLUNTARY HOSPITALS BOARD.

When the Sankey Report on the voluntary hospitals was issued in April, 1937, an appendix dealing with the work of the Associated Voluntary Hospitals Board was an acknowledgment that Liverpool had already made an attempt to solve some of the problems with which the Commission had been concerned. At that date Liverpool had in fact created not only a body representing a group of voluntary hospitals, but also a permanent joint committee of representatives of the municipal hospitals, the voluntary hospitals and the University of Liverpool.

In 1927 the local "Penny in the Pound" Contributory Scheme had been launched. As its name indicates, this "Merseyside Hospitals Council" serves hospitals and institutions in Liverpool, Birkenhead, Wallasey and Waterloo, and there is now an annual distribution of funds amounting to £125,000. The growth of the scheme to its present dimensions has been a magnificent achievement, and it is mentioned here as an important contribution to that regional conception of Merseyside which even the personal advocacy of Lord Derby has wholly failed to develop in the sphere of public administration.

The passing of the Local Government Act of 1929 gave a further impetus to the idea of inter-hospital co-operation. Two bodies, the Medical Charities Committee of the Liverpool Council of Social Service and the General Hospitals Co-ordination Committee, addressed a request to the Ministry of Health for the services of an experienced Medical Officer who should undertake an impartial survey of the Liverpool voluntary hospitals. This proposal was generously accepted by the Minister of Health, and the inquiry was undertaken at the expense of the Ministry by Dr. T. S. McIntosh, M.A., M.D., F.R.C.P. (Ed.) D.P.H. He presented his report in August, 1933, and in December of that year it was decided that a Commission should be appointed to review the findings of his report and to make recommendations in regard to future policy. The "Liverpool Hospitals Commission" was composed of five persons, being respectively a physician, a surgeon, a layman, the Vice-Chancellor of Liverpool University and Lord Cozens-Hardy as Chairman. After being at work for a year they published their report in January, 1935. Much of it was, of course, concerned with local problems, but in addition considerable space was given to wider issues such as those with which the Sankey Commission had to deal. For instance, there were chapters describing at some length the "Internal Organization of a Voluntary Hospital," and "The Case for the Voluntary Principle," as well as sections on the election of honorary staffs, the admission of emergency cases, relations with the local authority, and other subjects of more than local interest.

Type of Organisation evolved.

There are some twenty voluntary hospitals in Liverpool, apart from those on the other side of the Mersey. Within this total is a smaller group of nine highly developed hospitals, general and special, which are associated with the medical school of the University in teaching and research. A yet smaller group within the nine consists of the four general hospitals, generally known as the Royal Infirmary, the David Lewis Northern, the Royal Southern, and the Stanley. Side by side with the voluntary hospitals are four municipal hospitals which admit acute cases; one of them is the largest institution of this kind in the country.

The Liverpool Hospitals Commission was appointed to examine the problems of the voluntary system in Liverpool. It wisely argued that a subdivision into subsidiary problems of varying importance was the best way to cover the ground. The broad conclusion was that the order in which reforms should be taken was from the centre outwards, by which is meant that the four general hospitals ranked first for attention, that the problems common to the nine teaching hospitals came second, and the reorganisation of the remaining small hospitals last.

There were three groups, to all of which co-ordination and centralised control might be applied with good effect, but for the "general" group there was the additional necessity for physical concentration on one site. The "special" group consisting of fairly modern buildings situated all within easy reach of the University, had little to gain by amalgamating, and the outer hospitals by their very nature should remain geographically scattered. The four general hospitals, however, had reached that stage when they had to look forward to extensive rebuilding programmes merely to maintain their efficient operation. It seemed obvious to the Commission that these four should take the opportunity offered them of rebuilding on one site as a single hospital of a thousand beds. This recommendation was much more than a casual suggestion of a convenient building policy; it was based on the conviction that the essential requirement for maintaining and raising medical and hospital standards throughout the whole area was the provision of a first-class university hospital capable of dealing with any type of case any day. The existence of such a hospital at the centre would have an influence, inspiring and also of real practical value, both on the circle of adjacent hospitals and on the general practice of medicine in the surrounding districts.

Hence the promotion of the Liverpool United Hospital Bill in Parliament, and the subsequent amalgamation of the four general hospitals into the name of "The Royal Liverpool United Hospital" on the 1st January, 1938. At present the amalgamation is administrative only; at the outbreak of war the appeal for the new building fund was about to be launched, but had to be abandoned. Nevertheless, the ultimate aim is not being lost sight of; the erection of a new hospital on one site remains a corner stone of the United Hospital's policy.

Meanwhile, the "special" group has also received attention. The Liverpool Hospitals Commission had recommended the setting up of an advisory committee for the nine teaching hospitals (now six as a result of the general hospitals' amalgamation). Representatives met in May, 1935, and in June of that year the "Associated Voluntary Hospitals Board" came into being for a trial period of three years. There was a membership of eleven, six being members of hospital lay committees, three being medical men appointed by the hospital staffs, and two being representatives of the University. It is interesting to note that the six lay members were not appointed on a representative basis, but were nominated by the Earl of Derby in consultation with two persons of standing and seniority in local hospital affairs. At the end of the first three years the decision was made that the Board should continue, and its functions were defined as follows :—

- (i) To provide a standing consultative body representative of the University, the medical profession and the financial managements of the six teaching hospitals.
- (ii) To study all problems of common interest to the six teaching hospitals and to make proposals on any question calling for internal co-ordination.
- (iii) To negotiate on behalf of the six teaching hospitals whether with municipal or national bodies.

One of the first tasks which the Board set itself was the creation of permanent machinery for consultation between voluntary and municipal hospital representatives. After a series of conferences the approval of the voluntary hospitals and the Liverpool City Council was obtained, with the result that on the 29th January, 1937, the "Liverpool Hospitals Joint Advisory Committee" held its first meeting. This body consists of six members of the Hospitals Committee of the City Council and the Medical Officer of Health; six members of the Associated Voluntary Hospitals Board, and three representatives of the University. The Chairman is the Vice-Chancellor of the University, and the Medical Officer of Health and the Secretary of the Board are joint Honorary Secretaries. The Constitution of the Joint Committee gives the following as matters which are to be discussed :—

- (a) All or any of the matters referred to in Section 13 of the Local Government Act, 1929. (Now S. 182 of the Public Health Act, 1936).
- (b) The provision of new in-patient, out-patient, and casualty facilities, and new bed accommodation, buildings and equipment, as well as the extension of all such existing facilities, accommodation, buildings and equipment.
- (c) The medical and surgical staffing of the hospitals represented by the constituent bodies.
- (d) Financial arrangements between municipal and voluntary hospitals for services undertaken.

- (e) Medical education and research.
- (f) All matters of common interest to municipal and voluntary hospitals, whether directly or indirectly connected with the administration of the hospital services.

Functions and Activities.

The Associated Voluntary Hospitals Board has by common consent acquired certain functions additional to those contained in its terms of reference. For instance, it acts as a "Common Electoral Body" for the appointment of the honorary staffs of all the teaching hospitals. For some time it had been felt that the existing large electoral committees were inexpert and unwieldy: a small expert body dealing with all appointments in the associated hospitals was more likely to secure the selection of the highest skill and talent for the positions of highest prestige and responsibility. Accordingly it was arranged that all appointments should be submitted to the Board for their recommendation. Sixteen appointments have been dealt with in this way. The fact that recommendations have not been repudiated is no doubt due to the safeguard that the individual hospital concerned is entitled to send two lay and two medical representatives to take part in making any appointment to its own honorary staff.

Another function which the Board now undertakes is adjudication on proposals for capital expenditure by the teaching hospitals. The cardinal principle of voluntary hospital policy in Liverpool is that there should be no increase in the number of beds to be maintained, and that improvement in quality of service, not quantity, should be aimed at. To this principle is added the obvious consideration that duplication should wherever possible be avoided. The Board has adjudicated on ten major proposals for capital expenditure on extensions or equipment, and has been able to suggest less costly alternative proposals on more than one occasion.

The possibility of duplication of X-ray plant was the reason for a special inquiry into the basis of charges for X-ray diagnostic work done for one hospital by another. Four hospitals possessed no plant, and they were invited to send their work to hospitals which were not working to capacity, instead of purchasing expensive installations of their own. After a very careful investigation of costs the Board issued a tariff of charges designed to reimburse the supplying hospital but not yield a profit.

The list of questions which have been put to the Board from time to time by the associated hospitals would be too long to give here. They represent that very considerable part of the Board's work which may be described as the pooling of ideas on hospital practice. An inquiry into nursing conditions; the status of anaesthetists; rating assessments; oxygen tents; contributory income; action against bogus collecting agencies; the limitation of visiting hours: such are the varied subjects which have appeared on the Board's agenda.

There is also the Board's function as a negotiating and representative body. It undertook to collect evidence from Liverpool for the Interdepartmental Committee on Nursing Services; it has been used by the College of Nursing, the King Edward's Hospital Fund, the British Hospitals Association, and many other bodies as a means of approach to the individual hospitals. It was entrusted by Lord Derby with the task of appointing and settling the terms of reference of a Commission to explore methods of extending and if possible improving cancer work in the Liverpool area, and it is relevant to record in this context that the Commission's deliberations have resulted in the appearance of a "Liverpool Cancer Control Organisation" which represents all the local institutions concerned with cancer treatment and research. At the outbreak of war the Organisation had appointed a Radiotherapist possessing high qualifications, through whom it was hoped to stimulate and focus the work being done by all the various agencies for treatment and research.

Between the hospitals themselves there has also been the opportunity for the exercise of good offices by the Board. The United Hospital's appeal project was an important example of the type of subject which can be discussed best over a neutral table. The co-ordination of the ophthalmic work of a number of independent hospitals was another, though here we must record the Board's only major failure to achieve progress. Perhaps most important of all, however, has been the contact established through the Hospitals Joint Advisory Committee with the Municipal Health Authorities.

The Joint Committee began its work with a joint survey of the hospital accommodation of the City, both voluntary and municipal. This led to an interesting exchange of views. The municipality was taken into the confidence of the voluntary hospitals, particularly in regard to the proposals for a new United Hospital building, and the choice of site was referred to the Joint Committee. Evidence by technical experts was heard, and a deputation attended at the Ministry of Health, with the result that the site eventually chosen had the approval of all parties interested—the voluntary hospitals, the City Hospitals Committee, the University and the Ministry. Similarly the scheme for an "Emergency Bed Bureau" was discussed jointly. This Bureau takes the form of a central telephone exchange situated at the Royal Infirmary, and is designed to make possible the expeditious admission of emergency cases to hospital. A general practitioner who rings up can be sure that a bed will be found for his case in a very short space of time, and as a result of this work of the Joint Advisory Committee he knows that both voluntary and municipal hospitals are, as it were, on the same switchboard, together with their respective ambulance services. If a doctor asks for a voluntary hospital bed and there is none available, the Bureau is allowed to refer the patient to a municipal hospital.

Matters of administrative detail have also been discussed, such as the transfer of adequate clinical information with transferred cases, common practice concerning visiting hours, the training of almoners, and, of course, all the machinery of air-raid precautions.

The Sankey Report.

When the British Hospitals Association set up a Provisional Central Council to implement the Sankey Report one of the laymen on the Board was appointed a member, and through him the Board has been able to follow developments. Liverpool is in the old North-West Region, which also includes Manchester and a large area besides. The Board pressed at an early stage for two points:—

- (a) That the North-West Region should be subdivided, the spheres of influence of Manchester and Liverpool being separated.
- (b) That if a survey were to be made of the North-West Region it should be undertaken by an expert medical officer seconded by the Ministry of Health.

Both points were accepted, and Dr. T. S. McIntosh of the Ministry, together with Mr. Orde, came down to make a survey. They were assisted by the Board, at whose request a special sub-committee of the Liverpool Hospitals Staffs

Association had been set up for the purpose of suggesting the revised boundaries of the region. Unfortunately, for a variety of reasons the survey was not completed when war broke out, but the Nuffield benefaction has made possible a return to the problem, and the Board is now actively engaged on it once again.

It may be of interest to compare the position in Liverpool with the type of framework for a region suggested by the Sankey Report. The "key hospital" is represented by the group of teaching hospitals attached to the Liverpool University Medical School. There is a policy-making body for this small group (the Board itself), and there is the Liverpool Hospitals Joint Advisory Committee. The Joint Committee has come to have a wider jurisdiction than that described in previous paragraphs; practically all the voluntary hospitals of Merseyside, through the Liverpool Council of Social Service, have indicated that they will negotiate with the Liverpool City Council through the Board. This extension of influence has been reinforced by developments connected with war preparations. The Board arranged for the non-teaching hospitals the training for lay personnel; it was the body which the authorities approached for the nomination of a Group Officer for Liverpool and North-West Cheshire; and it is now negotiating with the Ministry of Health, on behalf of sixteen Merseyside hospitals, concerning payments for reserved casualty beds.

Limitations.

Co-ordination in Liverpool has been from the centre outwards. The record of work done is not one of which Liverpool need be ashamed, but there is a long way to go before the whole area of possible activity is covered. Even when the existing North-West Region is subdivided, the area looking to Liverpool will contain perhaps seventy hospitals of all types. The Board, which is the only existing co-ordinating body, has slowly extended its influence (in a limited field) so far as the central group of about twenty Merseyside hospitals. It can be fairly said that Liverpool has not been altogether dormant, but a consideration of what remains to be done leads to the suggestion of two important conclusions. First, it must be realised that work of this kind cannot be hurried, however many the paper schemes with which the co-ordinator is armed. The statutory amalgamation of four general hospitals, the setting up of a voluntary hospitals board, a joint voluntary-municipal committee, and a cancer organisation, can be described within the compass of a short article; the actual creation of such machinery takes time, demands unending patience, and requires the exercise of infinite tact and diplomacy. Quite apart from the administrative labour of evolving schemes which will achieve a reconciliation of interests, there is the preliminary task of preparing the psychological background. In this preparatory stage the effort expended sometimes appears to be persistently unfruitful; the work done seems almost too intangible to have any value. It has a value; careful and painstaking ground-work is worth while in the long run. Therefore, although every effort will be made to proceed as quickly as possible with "Regionalisation," results must not be expected by a single stroke of the pen.

The second conclusion, which arises in some ways from the first, is that any regional scheme must be organic, and not merely an administrative superstructure; and organic in this context means that the real centripetal force in a hospital region must be provided by the medical profession. Too much emphasis can be placed on the financial advantages of regional organisation. The maldistribution of hospital income was rightly regarded by the Sankey Report as a thing to be remedied. Nevertheless, hopes of solving this problem are doomed to failure if they are not based on a successful solution of the more vital problem of the distribution and demarcation of function. For the control of hospital development the power of a central purse is not sufficient; the ultimate sanction is mutual recognition by the medical profession themselves of the relative standards of skill among their members. It is not always the committee of the cottage hospital which is to blame for following a too ambitious programme; it is the lack of integration in the medical profession itself, which allows, perhaps forces, the local practitioner to attempt too much, and leaves the consultant with too great a proportion of routine work. Some means must be found of establishing a better adjustment between the two. It is they who must co-operate, and, be it said with diffidence, they must educate each other. It is not without reason, therefore, that Liverpool places so much importance on the creation of a first-class general teaching hospital as part of a university medical centre.

Hospitals Board.*

REGIONALISATION

MANCHESTER JOINT HOSPITALS ADVISORY BOARD.

This country has two hospital systems, and it is to be hoped that neither will supersede the other, but that both will combine in their efforts to treat the sick and to further the advance of medical knowledge. The voluntary hospitals have a great tradition. They have been responsible for the foundation and development of all the great schools of medicine, and they possess a freedom and individuality which is so necessary for the production of original ideas.

The municipal hospitals represent the concerted will of a free people, and have certain special duties of providing out of local rates for the destitute poor, for infectious diseases and for lunacy. But in 1929 an event occurred which has had a profound effect on the future of both the voluntary and municipal hospitals.

As a consequence of the provisions contained in the Local Government Act, 1929, the hospitals previously administered by the Board of Guardians as Poor Law Hospitals were transferred to County and County Borough Councils, giving them, at the same time, the power to remove these establishments from their poor law association and to administer them under non-poor law legislation.

The hospitals thus transferred and administered under Public Health Acts are open not only to the poor, but to all the inhabitants of the area, and have the legal right to recover the cost of maintenance from their patients, a right which is not granted to the voluntary hospitals. But unlike the voluntary hospitals the area from which they collect their patients is restricted by their municipal boundary.

Since April 1930 (the date of the operation of this Act) the hospital services of the various Councils have developed rapidly, and it has been necessary to effect great changes in the staffing and equipment in an endeavour to bring them up to the standard set by the voluntary hospitals.

In addition, Section 13 of this Act placed a statutory obligation upon local authorities to consult with representatives of the voluntary hospitals with regard to the provision of hospital accommodation generally, which suggested that hospital services should before long cease to have the sharp division as between voluntary and rate-aided establishments, and that in future all hospitals should operate as one common provision for the benefit of the populace at large.

By this it was inferred that progressive local authorities would, together with representatives of the voluntary hospitals, explore the hospital needs of their areas, envisage and plan complete hospital provision for the communities they represent, as it was obvious these needs could not be satisfactorily met by independent and possibly competitive services, but only by the most intimate co-operation, adjusted to the altered conditions which must now prevail, between the municipal and voluntary hospitals in any area.

Prior and subsequent to the passing of the 1929 Act, conferences took place from time to time between the Corporation of Manchester and certain of the voluntary hospitals, but it was not until 26th March 1935 that the first conference of the two "Section 13" committees was held, when a proposal was placed before the meeting for the formation of a body, permanent in its constitution but acting in an advisory capacity, which would not only effectively replace the technical and legal consultation provided for by the sub-committee already appointed, but would ensure a measure of unification far greater than that required by Section 13 of the Act. It was suggested that such a body should be representative of the City Council and the Voluntary Hospitals Council and when consulted could, as a single governing body entrusted with the policy of hospital provision, advise any of the constituent hospital authorities as to the proper relationship of hospital services and on other matters which require impartial decisions in the best interests of the hospitals of the city. Co-operation there must be, not only between the voluntary hospitals and the local authorities, but between the voluntary hospitals themselves. Whilst the municipal hospitals have had the advantage of some form of central administration, inasmuch as the whole of the work of the various hospitals has been administered by one committee, the voluntary hospitals, in some instances, have grown up in an atmosphere of individuality, without contact with neighbouring institutions of the same kind.

As a consequence of the many meetings and discussions which followed, a Joint Hospitals Advisory Board was formed, consisting of representatives of the Public Health Committee, the Voluntary Hospitals Council and the University of Manchester. The first meeting of this Board was held on the 28th October 1935.

Since its formation the Board has done valuable work, and at the present time it is difficult to assess the great advantages that have resulted since its inception. First and foremost must be put the good will which has been engendered between the municipal and voluntary hospitals. Although prior to the formation of the Joint Board there had always been a friendly relationship between the two services, this has now given place to a complete trust in one another, and at none of the meetings of the Joint Board has there been the least suspicion of partisanship displayed, and it is evident that the obvious desire of each member of the Board is to benefit the sick and to make the hospital service in Manchester the best in the country.

Wisely, it has advanced carefully and slowly. Any recommendation made has been the result of most deliberate enquiry, and frequent use has been made of the expert assistance of co-opted members, for it was felt that the function of the Board should be advisory in character and should never assume any executive power, relying on the soundness of its recommendations for their acceptance by the constituent hospitals.

The first important duty this Board had to perform was to help the municipal hospitals in the appointment of a large number of consultants, made necessary by their altered function. For this purpose the Board set up an advisory panel consisting of lay and medical people whose knowledge of hospital policy and the medical ability of the candidates, enabled them to select the most suitable individuals and to satisfy themselves that the candidates had received an adequate training suitable for their particular appointment.

The Joint Board have endeavoured to persuade all hospitals to utilise the services of this panel for the election of their honorary officers. This proposal has, however, been met with a certain amount of suspicion by the voluntary hospitals, as they felt that by accepting this principle they would be losing what they considered to be a most important right. The largest voluntary hospital and only teaching hospital, the Manchester Royal Infirmary, however, considered the proposal to be a great advance, and requested the advice of the Panel concerning the last two appointments to the Honorary Staff. I am of the opinion that if we are to have full co-operation of all hospitals it is likely that this will be brought about in the first instance by the medical staff, and it is desirable that appointments should be made by one body which can judge the requirements of the hospitals as a whole.

An important report on the treatment of fractures has been submitted, due regard being paid to the recommendations issued by the British Medical Association in 1935. To further the unification of the orthopaedic services the city has been divided into three divisions, north, central and south, and arrangements have been made for this service to be given by two voluntary and one municipal hospital operating in the north, one voluntary hospital in the central, and one municipal hospital in the south. This marks a real advance in organisation and has been approved by all the constituent hospitals.

The Joint Board has also been concerned in the development of thoracic surgery. It considered that if thoracic surgery was to be done efficiently it was of the utmost importance that it should be concentrated so that not only the operating team but also the medical and nursing staff should be experienced in this very specialised type of work. To achieve this object, arrangements have been made for the treatment of non-tuberculous cases at a voluntary hospital and the tuberculous cases in the municipal hospitals and sanatoria. To make this an effective unit a surgeon-in-charge has been appointed who is responsible for both the clinics at the voluntary as well as the municipal hospitals.

Honorary Directors of clinical services were appointed for an experimental period to the municipal hospitals in medicine, surgery and gynaecology. These Directors were men who were experienced in the wider problems of hospital policy, teaching and research. They were appointed to ensure the proper development of the consultant services of the municipal hospitals. As a result of the experience gained during the experimental period the Joint Board has approved of proposals whereby instead of appointing individual advisors in the various branches of medicine, a committee known as "an Honorary Advisory Medical Committee" is to be appointed consisting of representatives of medicine, surgery, obstetrics, gynaecology and orthopaedics. This honorary advisory committee will cover all the constituent hospitals so that the true perspective of the services involving all the hospitals in the city will be available to the Joint Board.

Many other problems have engaged the attention of the Board. The reduction of waiting lists, working hours of nurses, and latterly its energies have been directed to promoting the efficiency of the Emergency Hospital Scheme. Arising out of the latter comes an interesting factor—the formation of a blood transfusion service with a specially appointed blood transfusion officer. This service is now operating satisfactorily, and it is to be hoped that it will form a permanent part of the hospital organisation of the City.

Much preparatory work has been done with regard to the reduction of waiting lists, but difficulties have been experienced. It was found that in some cases a patient's name was on the list of more than one hospital. There was also a lack of standard nomenclature in the classification of disease. These two difficulties were overcome with the assistance of the Northern Association of Hospital Secretaries, who arranged for the checking of hospital registers one against another, and also a temporary classification of disease was agreed to and utilised. The main difficulty, however, arose from the fact that the voluntary hospitals are not restricted in the area from which they collect their patients, and the municipal hospitals who, it was thought, might assist during a certain period of each year are restricted to their city boundaries. No doubt in the event of regionalisation of hospital services this problem could readily be solved.

This brief survey of the Joint Board's activity must make it evident that it has made real and lasting progress and that the hospital service of Manchester is being developed on the lines indicated so ably by the Sankey report. The Manchester hospitals serve a wide area, and much work has yet to be done before the bigger scheme of regionalisation can be put into operation.

The dream of a hospital system serving a region with perfect liaison between the outlying hospitals and the big city hospitals adequately staffed with people fully trained in their particular speciality and consequently able to give superlative service is in the mind of Lord Nuffield, who by his magnificent generosity has shown us that he means this dream to come true.

Manchester is putting its own house in order, but as yet has made no attempt to elucidate the problem of the outlying hospitals. This must, I think, fall to the lot of the trustees of the fund, who will, I hope, elicit the aid of first-class Regional Officers and the help of the Joint Board. Their task will be difficult, and much tact and diplomacy will be required. At many of these hospitals major surgery is being performed by men who would not be considered fully trained by a teaching hospital. Indeed, at some hospitals, the work-people, being more and more interested financially in the hospitals of their town, are demanding specialist services as competent as those received at a large city hospital.

It is also important in any scheme of regionalisation to examine carefully the rôle the general practitioner should assume. In the last few years it has been realised that general practitioners in a busy practice often had not the time nor facility of keeping up to date with their medical knowledge, and so Post-Graduate refresher courses were instituted. These have been a great success and have been much appreciated, but how much better it would be for all concerned if the practitioners were attached to the hospital of their district for a period of duty. Not only would it be of great value to the general practitioner in stimulating his interest, but would be of great help to the hospital. For too long has there been a great gap between the hospital service and practitioner service. It has to be recognised that both services are necessary and the more intimate their connection the better will be the medical service which the public receive.

In some instances hospitals will have to be up-graded to meet the requirement of the particular district, and I have no doubt that some of the money so generously given will be used for the purpose, but I hope that the voluntary hospitals will not regard this money as a welcome gift to relieve their financial difficulties, for I am sure that it is Lord Nuffield's intention that this money should be used to bring into effect a far-sighted policy which will be of inestimable value to the people of this country.

May the Trustees of this Fund regard their task as no light one. Their difficulties are great and at times will lead them to despair. Let them advance by easy stages and gain the confidence of the hospitals by the wisdom of their deliberations and they will then have power to make a real contribution to the efficiency of our hospital system.

OXFORD AND DISTRICT JOINT HOSPITALS BOARD.

The Oxford and District Joint Hospitals' Board was formed in 1935.

The main objects which the founders of the Joint Board had in mind were :—

REGIONALISATION

- (a) The prevention of overlapping and duplication in voluntary hospital services.
- (b) The co-ordination of special efforts for raising funds for hospital services in the district.
- (c) Co-operation between Voluntary Hospitals and Local Public Health Authorities.

The Joint Board is composed of representatives of :—

- (a) Voluntary Hospitals.
- (b) Local Public Health Authorities.
- (c) Medical Services.
- (d) Hospital Contributory Schemes, Provident Associations and Nursing Organisations.

Fifteen Voluntary Hospitals, four County or County Borough Councils, two Contributory Schemes are at present associated with the Joint Board.

The Joint Board's activities may be divided into three sections :—

- (a) Co-ordination of hospital services.
- (b) Organisation of special efforts for raising funds for hospital services.
- (c) Co-operation with Local Authorities in hospital service and financial policy.

It may be convenient to review what has been done by the Joint Board in each of these directions.

Co-ordination of Hospital Services.

(a) Transfer of "Recovery" Cases.—The Joint Board found that some of the associated hospitals were running with an undue proportion of empty beds and others had a "waiting" list. It was, accordingly, arranged that the Radcliffe Infirmary should advise the Joint Board from day to day how many patients were available for transfer to other hospitals in the district where general nursing and convalescent treatment (but not specialist services) could be provided. The Joint Board calls up the latter hospitals and arranges the transfer of these patients. Every care is taken to consult the wishes of the patients and, wherever possible, they are transferred to the hospital in the district in which they live. The effect of this system of transfer of patients is to release beds at the Radcliffe Infirmary for cases requiring specialist services or treatment and to fill beds in the local hospitals which might otherwise remain empty. In addition to reducing the "waiting" list at the Radcliffe, and thereby enabling patients to obtain specialist treatment or services earlier than would otherwise be possible, the "transfer" system enables the "convalescent" patient to be treated at a local hospital adjacent to his place of residence at a lower cost than would be the case had he remained in the Radcliffe.

(b) Ear, Nose and Throat Services in the District.—At the beginning of 1938 the Joint Board undertook a survey of the Ear, Nose and Throat services in the district. It was felt that it would be an advantage if, instead of using the Radcliffe Infirmary for more simple operations for Tonsils and Adenoids, arrangements could be made whereby these cases could be dealt with in certain selected local hospitals, leaving the Radcliffe Infirmary free to deal with those Ear, Nose and Throat cases requiring more highly specialised treatment.

Proposals were approved for setting up Ear, Nose and Throat Clinics at Banbury, Buckingham, Fairford and Wantage hospitals, but, owing to the outbreak of war, it has not, so far, been possible to put this scheme into full operation. It is, however, hoped to revive the proposal in the near future.

(c) Creation of a District Blood Transfusion Service.—During the last nine months a Sub-Committee of the Joint Board has been working out plans for a blood transfusion service which would be operative throughout the district served by the Board. A substantial number of voluntary blood donors had been enrolled and grouped before war broke out. Since the commencement of hostilities approximately two hundred additional donors have been enrolled and grouped in an Emergency Blood Transfusion Service. The Joint Board's Blood Transfusion Service is being steadily developed and it is hoped that, within the next six months, it may be possible to complete the organisation of local branches of the service throughout the district.

(d) Didcot Hospital.—The new hospital at Didcot is an interesting example of what it is hoped to do on a wider scale when the Hospitals' Regionalisation Scheme (which Lord Nuffield's Trust for the Provincial Hospitals is intended to promote) is in full operation.

There has long been a need for hospital accommodation to be provided at Didcot in order to prevent the necessity for sending emergency and maternity cases to the Radcliffe Infirmary or the Royal Berkshire Hospital. The problem was largely one of maintenance. The local people, with the assistance of a munificent donation from

REGIONALISATION

Lord Nuffield and a guarantee from the Nuffield Trust for Hospitals in the Oxford district, have raised a large part of the capital required. The hospital has been built and is about to be opened. It is to be vested in Trustees nominated by the Joint Board, equipped and staffed by the Radcliffe Infirmary and will be financed largely by payments from the contributory schemes associated with the Joint Board.

The Didcot experiment may well be the beginning of a system under which newly created hospitals will be staffed and financed through the agency of Regional Hospital Boards. This would mean that new hospitals would be located where the Regional Boards felt that they were most needed and the responsibility of staffing and finance would be undertaken by the Regional Organisation. This policy would do much to provide the best possible distribution and usage of hospital services in each regional area.

(e) Neurological Services.—The Joint Board has assisted the promotion of an arrangement between the Radcliffe Infirmary and the Warneford Mental Hospital which has resulted in the co-ordination of the Neurological Department of the Infirmary and the work of the Warneford Hospital.

Organisation of Hospital Finance and Special Money-raising Efforts in the District.

(a) Collection of Individual Subscriptions.—The Joint Board has undertaken the collection of individual subscriptions for—

The Radcliffe Infirmary.

The Wingfield-Morris Hospital.

The Oxford Eye Hospital.

The Horton General Hospital, Banbury.

It is hoped to extend this system of collection to other associated hospitals.

Each subscriber is given the opportunity of "earmarking" his subscription to one or more of these four hospitals. It is interesting to record that an increasing number of individual subscribers are not "earmarking" their subscriptions, but are making a block payment to the Joint Board. These subscriptions are allocated to the hospitals concerned on an agreed basis. When this system of "collective" appeal was introduced fears were expressed that the effect would be a reduction in the total amount collected. In actual practice this has not been the case. The total amount collected has been up to average and, in some cases, the individuals concerned have increased their subscriptions.

(b) Organisation of Special Efforts.—During the summer of 1938 the Joint Board organised a combined fête for the Oxford Hospitals which produced satisfactory results.

In the winter of 1938-9 the Joint Board, in association with the Contributory Scheme, organised a series of Whist Drives and Dances throughout the district, as a result of which more than £1,250 was raised and distributed to the Associated Hospitals.

(c) "Alexandra Rose Day" Appeals.—The Joint Hospitals' Board, in association with the Contributory Scheme, is undertaking the organisation of "Alexandra Rose Day" and other special appeals in the district.

Co-operation with Local Public Health Authorities.

This is not the least important side of the Joint Board's activities. The co-operation which is being secured expresses itself in two main directions :—

(a) Service Arrangements.

(b) Financial Contributions.

(a) Co-operation in the Provision of Hospital Services.—So far as service arrangements are concerned the co-operation which has resulted from the formation of the Joint Board secures full consultations between the Local Authorities and Voluntary Hospitals in regard to any extensions of services which one side or the other has under consideration. In this way duplication of services is avoided. To give an example : The Oxfordshire County Council has, for some time, been considering the erection of a Public Hospital which would replace the existing Public Assistance Infirmarys. Before proceeding with this proposal the County Council has consulted the City Council and the Joint Board. The matter is still under consideration, and there are reasons for hoping that an arrangement may be possible as a result of which the Local Authorities and the Joint Board may be able to co-operate in the provision of a hospital which would relieve the Radcliffe of a certain number of cases not requiring highly specialised treatment. If it is possible to secure such an arrangement the new hospital could be utilised as a centre for certain services in co-operation with the Radcliffe and other voluntary hospitals in the area.

The war has, necessarily, affected the progress of these proposals, and the ultimate issue remains uncertain. It is, however, quite clear that the existence of the Joint Board has done much to increase the possibility of an arrangement on the lines suggested.

(b) Financial Assistance by Local Authorities.—The financial results of co-operation between Local Authorities and the Joint Board are beginning to make themselves apparent. During each of the last two financial years the Oxford City and Oxfordshire County Councils have both made to the Joint Board contributions of £1,000 under the 1936 Public Health Act. These contributions are additional to the payments made to hospitals by these Councils in respect of services rendered in cases for which the Councils undertake responsibility for payment. They represent new income to the hospitals, and it is, at least, doubtful whether these contributions would have been made but for the existence of the Board. Local Authorities are empowered to make contributions to Hospitals up to the product of one penny and one-third rate. The amount at present contributed by the Oxford City and Oxford County Councils is equivalent to a rate of approximately one-third of a penny.

General Observations.

The Joint Board is now on the way to emerging from an experimental stage to a position in which it may well become the centre of hospital service and financial organisation in the district.

There is an increasing readiness to co-operate on the part of the Voluntary Hospitals, the Medical Interests and the Local Authorities.

The Oxford Joint Board was one of the first experiments in the regionalisation of hospital services to be undertaken.

The Board was created some time before the Sankey Commission was appointed, and there is evidence in the Commission's Report that the experiments which had been tried out at Oxford and in two or three other areas influenced the Commission's recommendations in favour of the Regionalisation Scheme.

The Oxford experiment owes much of the success which has been achieved to Lord Nuffield's consistent interest and generous support. Without these the Board would have found it difficult, if not impossible, to establish an organisation which has been enabled to bring together the various interests concerned in the provision of hospital services in the Oxford district.

W. HYDE,

Hon. Sec. Oxford and District Joint Hospitals Board.

SHEFFIELD HOSPITALS COUNCIL.

The Sheffield Hospitals Council was formed in 1919 as the result of a report presented by the honorary medical staffs of the voluntary hospitals. It formulated the Penny-in-the-Pound Contributory Scheme, as it was realised that financial support was a necessary foundation to any real progress.

There are now some 3,500 firms with over 270,000 contributors, and last year an income of £220,000 was raised. There is an efficient Ambulance Service run in collaboration with the Municipality, as well as a Convalescent Service which sends between 2,000 and 3,000 patients away each year. Some 77 District, and 11 Ward, Hospital Committees assist in organising contributors who are not attached to any place of business. A few years ago when the income was insufficient to meet the expenditure, the contributors agreed to give not only a penny in each completed pound of wages, but also a penny in the broken pound, and now practically all employers add one-third to both these sums.

It is a matter of great, and one hopes legitimate pride, that the Sheffield Penny-in-the-Pound scheme has been so successful, and has been not only a boon to Sheffield itself, but has been a model for other centres to work on. Members of the staff of the Council have gone to Liverpool, Reading and Leeds. Many millions of pounds have been raised from the working classes and their employers on these principles.

Perhaps as important as the raising of money is the spread and deepening of the spirit of partnership in and affection for the hospitals.

The Sheffield and District Association of Hospital Contributors was formed in 1921. It holds quarterly meetings, which are very well attended by delegates from contributory establishments, and elects representatives to its executive committee, to the Hospitals Council, and to the boards of the four voluntary hospitals in Sheffield, and the Edgar Allen Institute.

The Sheffield Association is one of the leading members of the British Hospitals Contributory Schemes Association which was formed about 10 years ago.

An indirect but useful outcome of the activities of these bodies has been the interchange of benefits for contributors taken ill out of their own districts.

The Sheffield Municipal and Voluntary Hospitals Joint Advisory Committee was formed in January, 1930, as was suggested by the Local Government Act, 1929. It may be remembered that this Act altered the status of the old poor law hospitals and their relationship to the community and the voluntary hospitals.

This committee has been instrumental in making two agreements between the voluntary and municipal hospitals in Sheffield. One deals with contributors to the contributory scheme who obtain treatment in the municipal hospitals, and the other with patients on the waiting lists of the voluntary hospitals transferred to the municipal hospitals.

These agreements have benefited a large number of patients and saved much heart-burning.

The committee has also been useful in fostering the spirit of co-ordination between the respective Hospital Authorities in the City, and has prevented needless and wasteful competition.

The Sheffield Regional Committee, which was formed in 1921, and reformed as the Sheffield and District Regional Committee in 1927, is the Regional Committee of the British Hospitals Association and covers the natural hospital area of which the Sheffield University Medical School and Teaching Hospitals are the centre. The district embraces Rotherham, Mexborough, Doncaster, Barnsley, etc., to the north, and Retford, Worksop, etc., to the east. With the addition of Chesterfield in the south and Bakewell in the south-west, these are the boundaries suggested by the Provisional Central Council of the British Hospitals Association for the Sheffield Region.

Both Leeds and Sheffield advised that their respective towns should be independent centres of their own, as each have a University with a Medical School and Teaching Hospitals which form natural centres of complete hospital areas.

The regular quarterly meetings which take turns in the different hospitals in the area have done much to wipe away misunderstandings and stimulate a spirit of mutual helpfulness.

Perhaps the most interesting and useful move that has been made recently has been informal conference between representatives of the Sheffield Voluntary Hospitals, the Sheffield University, the Sheffield Municipality, and the West Riding County Council. It is hoped that some scheme may be evolved which will co-ordinate the extensions needed by the county council, the municipality, and those planned by the voluntary hospitals and for which the Million Pound Appeal has been launched.

The general principles which are being followed are on the lines advocated by the Sankey Commission and the British Hospitals Association, and upon which the Provisional Central Council have been working.

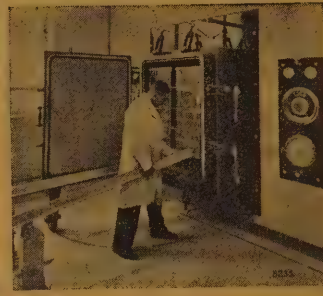

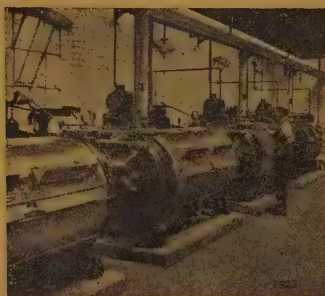

The splendid encouragement given by Lord Nuffield should stimulate all who are giving thought to hospital and health problems and make real progress possible to the good of the whole community.

ROAD TRAFFIC ACTS.

CLAIMS BY HOSPITALS FOR EXPENSES OF TREATMENT OF ROAD ACCIDENT CASES.

Agreement with Insurers.

THE Road Traffic Acts contain certain ambiguities of wording which in the past have given rise to differences of opinion between Hospitals and Insurance Offices.

In order to obviate such differences and to facilitate the settlement of claims made by Hospitals in respect of Road Accident Cases, it has been arranged through the medium of the Accident Offices Association that the undernoted procedure will be adhered to by the Insurance Offices and groups of Underwriters at Lloyd's (hereinafter referred to as "Insurers"), whose names (or the names of whose policies) are set out on the list appended to this Memorandum.

N.B.—These arrangements have not been agreed to and consequently may not be followed by Insurers whose names do not appear in this list.

Claims for In-patient and Out-patient Treatment.

Where a patient receives both in-patient and out-patient treatment, Insurers will pay up to the total of the maxima for the two treatments, i.e. £50 in-patients and £5 out-patients.

Claims in Respect of Passengers in Cars.

Insurers will pay claims in respect of the treatment of patients who were passengers in a car if the liability of the car-owner to passengers is covered by the policy, provided that a claim by the passenger has been paid by the Insurer.

Calculation of Daily Cost of In-patient Treatment.

For the purpose of arriving at the amount of the costs of in-patient treatment to be paid by an Insurer, the average daily cost of in-patient treatment based on the Hospital's Annual Report and calculated in accordance with the provisions of the Road Traffic Acts shall be agreed each year between the Accident Offices Association and each individual Hospital. The rate so agreed will be paid by Insurers to Hospitals without the necessity of further negotiations regarding the daily cost. The rate is reviewed annually, and remains in operation until the next Annual Report is submitted and an alteration of rate agreed. The cost to be paid in respect of any in-patient will be based on the agreed rate in force at the date of his admission to hospital, and will not be affected by any subsequent change of rate.

Calculation of Cost of Out-patient Treatment.

Insurers will make payments for out-patient treatment in accordance with the following schedule :—

First attendance (including dressings, splints, etc.)	* {	5	0 or
		12	6
Subsequent attendances (including simple dressings and inspections)		2	0
X-ray examinations (per examination)		10	6
Out-patient operations under general anaesthetics	1	1	0
Out-patient operations under local anaesthetics		7	6
Massage (per attendance)		2	0
Electrical treatment (per attendance)		2	0

* Where the emergency treatment fee of 12s. 6d. is payable, this will be paid in lieu of the 5s. for the first attendance; and subsequent attendances and other treatments will be paid for up to a limit of £5.

Emergency Treatment Fee Not Deducted.

Claims for in-patient treatment made by Hospitals will be paid without deduction of sums recovered by way of fees for emergency treatment.

Claims for Emergency Fees.

Insurers will accept claims for the 12s. 6d. emergency treatment fee that are made direct to them by a Hospital (instead of being made to the user of the car), and these claims need not be sent to them by registered post—but they should be presented within seven days of the accident.

N.B.—The claim should still be made to the "user of the car" if his Insurers are not included in the following list.

Purposes for which this quality may be used

For sheet metal goods. Suitable for pressing, spinning, flanging and lapping. May be soldered or welded in thin Sections.

Heat Treatment

Material shall be supplied in the fully softened condition unless specified otherwise.

If it is necessary to soften after fabrication, this shall be carried out by heating article to 1050–1100° C. and cooling in water or freely in air.

with suitable addition of other alloying elements.

Purposes for which this steel may be used

For sheet metal goods. Suitable for fabricating by welding or hot working, and to be immune from weld decay after welding.

Heat Treatment

Material shall be supplied in the softened condition unless otherwise specified.

If it is necessary to soften after fabrication this shall be carried out by heating article to 1050–1100° C. and cooling in water or freely in air.

Test for Immunity from Weld Decay

Test piece shall be heated for 30 minutes at 650° C. and submitted to total immersion for 72 hours in a boiling solution containing :—

111 grm. copper sulphate.
98 „ „ sulphuric acid.

made up to 1 litre with distilled water.

After this treatment test piece shall show no sign of weld decay on bending and when dropped on a metal surface, prior to bending, it shall retain the original metallic ring.

Construction and Design

Wherever practicable all fabricated goods must be of seamless construction. Where not practicable welded construction will be permitted, but soldered joints are not acceptable. Handles, feet, etc., may be welded, spot welded or soldered on, but such soldering will only be permitted on outside of vessel.

All fabricated goods shall be of such a design as to be free from all inaccessible crevices, likely to provide lodgment for matter which would provoke growth of bacteria: e.g. usual wired type of bead is not acceptable for hospital utensils. Samples of approved beading may be obtained on loan from the Committee.

The interior of all vessels must be easily accessible for cleaning with the usual cleansing devices available in hospitals.

Finish

All stainless goods, whether appliances or utensils, for use in hospitals must be supplied with a perfectly smooth finish. A highly polished type of finish is not essential, unless specified.

List of Chemicals to which above qualities of Stainless Steels shall be corrosion-resistant Diameter of basket top 14 in.

Diameter of basket bottom (circular metal plate) $7\frac{3}{4}$ in.
Rubber feet on cross pieces extending $\frac{3}{4}$ in. from base of basket.

Construction of Basket

2 wire hoops supported by 4 sloping stays from base; and 4 cross pieces from centre column to the upper hoop.

Wooden Turned Handle

$5\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times $\frac{3}{4}$ in.

Gauge of Wire

Basket $\frac{7}{32}$ in.

Centre column $\frac{1}{4}$ in.

Constructed to carry 4 glass urinals of a maximum capacity, when resting on a flat surface, of 36 fluid ounces.

HOSPITAL COT

Headend

$1\frac{1}{4}$ in. welded steel tubular bows, fitted with cast or malleable iron sockets, 4 in. ball race castors with rubber composition, or iron, rubber-tyred wheels, $\frac{1}{2}$ in. welded steel tubular uprights and crossbar, uprights let into bow and welded and cast on to crossbar below seat.

Footend

As headend, but fitted with centre leg wheeling device with 4 in. rubber composition or iron rubber tyred wheels, legs fitted with wood feet.

Frame

$1\frac{1}{4}$ in. welded tubular sides, with five hooks, $1\frac{1}{2}$ in. end angles, flat (various types of spring mesh are offered by different manufacturers). Frame fitted with latches to carry drop sides constructed so that the sides swing underneath at an angle away from the Nurses' feet. T section ends are recommended to avoid space between filling in head and foot and frame.

SPECIFICATIONS OF THE STANDARDISATION COMMITTEE

Drop sides

With $\frac{3}{4}$ in. welded tubular top rod and $\frac{3}{8}$ in. solid round uprights welded or rivetted to 1 in. \times $\frac{3}{16}$ in. half round bottom bar, fitted with safety catch at centre, depth of sides, above spring mesh 22 in., height from floor to surface of spring mesh 24 in.

Finish

DRESSINGS TROLLEY

(Size 30 \times 18 without drawers)

The main tubing forming the legs and the top rail to be 1 in. dia. \times 16 gauge, and the shelf bearing rails to be $\frac{3}{4}$ in. dia. \times 16 gauge, both to be in seamless steel tubing. The front uprights and top rail to be made in one continuous length bent to shape. The shelf bearing rails are also made in one continuous length, the four corners being rounded and welded to the inside of the uprights. Height to top of shelf bearing rails to be 17 in. and 34 in. respectively from floor level.

If a bowl carrier is to be provided a collar is to be welded to the leg below the top shelf, and so placed that the bowl carrier may swing clear of the trolley both in the front and at the side.

All joints to be welded.

To be fitted with two shelves, armour plate glass, or suitable material $\frac{1}{4}$ in. thick with polished edges.

Four rubber buffers to be supplied for each shelf, two to be fitted on the front rail and two on the back rail; to be of antistatic rubber tubing $2\frac{1}{2}$ in. long \times $\frac{11}{16}$ in. internal dia. \times $\frac{3}{16}$ in. wall cut on spiral, as obtainable from the Dunlop Rubber Co., Ltd. (General Rubber Goods Division), Brookes Market, London, E.C. 1.

The trolley to be mounted on four rubber-tyred castors, pattern "Homa" PD4R 4 in. diameter, chromium plated similar to those manufactured by the Homa Engineering Co., Ltd., or other make of equal quality and finish. (In the latter case a sample to be submitted with the quotation.)

The finish of the tubing to be sprayed white or other colours to match the decoration of the ward. Black is cheaper, but is not recommended. Alternatively the finish to be chromium plate or an aluminium coat.

Note

A length of chain may be attached to the lower shelf bearing rail, to earth any charge of static electricity. The specification for this chain is as follows:—

The chain is to be chromium plate brass double jack chain, 18 gauge, securely attached to the lower shelf bearing rail, but in such a way that it can be easily removed for renewal. The length of the chain to be such that when the trolley is at rest three links will lie on the ground.

RUBBER-PROOFED HOSPITAL BED SHEETING

(Red Double Faced)

Scope

This specification defines the requirements as to materials and construction for rubber-proofed hospital sheeting for general use, and is not intended to apply to sheetings required to withstand the action of oils, fats or greases.

Lengths

Sheeting supplied to this specification shall be in lengths of at least 50 yards each.

Constructions

The sheeting shall consist of one ply of woven cotton fabric coated evenly with a rubber compound to equal thickness on both sides, the whole being vulcanised.

The proofing shall adhere firmly to the fabric so that on repeated folding and creasing there is no sign of separation.

The surface shall be smooth and free from blemishes.

The weight of the sheeting shall be 26 ± 2 oz. per sq. yard.

The thickness of the sheeting when measured as described in Appendix I shall everywhere be between the following limits: 0.035 in. to 0.039 in.

SPECIFICATIONS OF THE STANDARDISATION COMMITTEE

Strength of Sheeting

The tensile strength of the finished sheeting determined as described in Appendix II shall be not less than the following values :—

Warp.	Weft.
85 lb. per in.	85 lb. per in.

Fabric

The cotton fabric shall be such as to give a finished width, including selvedge, of 36 in. and shall be evenly and firmly woven with 2-fold yarn. The fabric shall be as free from dressing, foreign matter and such defects as slubs, knots and irregularities of weave, as is in accordance with the best manufacturing practice.

The weight of the fabric, determined as described in Appendix III, shall be 8.0 ± 0.4 oz. per sq. yard.

The count of the fabric shall be :

Warp.	Weft.
42 ± 2	48 ± 2 threads per inch.

Rubber Proofing

The proofing shall be made from the first-grade wild or plantation Hevea rubber and suitable compounding ingredients free from grit and coarse particles, and shall be correctly vulcanised by heat treatment so as to withstand the accelerated ageing test described below. The use of sulphur monochloride as a vulcanising agent is prohibited.

The "free" sulphur content of the sheeting shall not exceed 0.5 per cent. calculated on the proofing, when determined by the method described in Appendix IV.

The alcoholic potash extract of the acetone-extracted sheeting shall not exceed 5 per cent. calculated on the proofing, when determined by the method described in Appendix V.

Staining of Fabrics

The sheeting shall not stain cotton or linen fabrics when placed in contact with them under normal conditions of usage.

Accelerated Ageing Test

After subjection to the ageing test described in Appendix VI the sheeting shall still be in a serviceable condition and show no signs of becoming sticky or of cracking when sharply folded.

Colour

The colour of the sheeting shall be red and shall not fade on exposure to light, or on immersion in a 5 per cent. aqueous phenol solution at room temperature for 10 days.

The colour shall not be extractable by water or alcohol.

*Appendix IMeasurement of Thickness

The thickness of the sheeting shall be measured by a dial micrometer gauge the foot of which exerts a pressure of not less than 100 g./cm.² (1.5 lb./sq. in.) or more than 200 g./cm.² (3.0 lb./sq. in.) on the sheeting.

*Appendix IIDetermination of Strength of Sheeting

Six specimens each measuring 2×11 in. shall be prepared with the long dimension parallel to the warp threads and six with this dimension parallel to the weft threads. The specimens shall be prepared by cutting two nicks 2 in. apart in the edge of a piece of the sheeting and tearing the piece down from these two nicks so as to ensure the sides of the specimen being parallel to the threads. The exact width of each specimen shall be measured and used to calculate the strength per inch width.

The specimens shall be kept at a temperature between 65° and 75° F. for at least 12 hours and then tested in a suitable tensile testing machine (see Appendix VII), the length of the specimens between the grips shall be 7 in. and the test shall be made at a temperature between 65° and 75° F.

Care shall be taken to place the specimens evenly in the machine and the rate of traverse of the grips by which the load is applied shall be between 12 and 18 in. per minute.

Should fracture occur in the grips, the specimen shall be discarded and another tested in its place. The strength of each specimen shall be calculated as lb. per inch width.

The average of the results obtained respectively from the warp and weft specimens shall be taken as the warp and weft tensile strength of the sheeting.

*Appendix IIIDetermination of Weight of Fabric

A piece of the sheeting measuring exactly 3×6 in. or of equivalent area, shall be weighed (weight— W_1) and then heated at about 160° C. in paraffin lamp oil (300° C. burning oil, sp. gr. 0.825) for about 1 hour, or longer if necessary, to render the rubber proofing thoroughly swollen and soft. The swollen rubber shall be carefully scraped off the fabric as completely as possible and the fabric then extracted with benzene for four hours in a suitable extraction apparatus (see Appendix VIII). The fabric shall then be thoroughly washed successively with ether, two portions of 100 c.c. each of hot 2*N* acetic acid, water, two portions of 100 c.c. each of hot 2*N* caustic soda solution, water, two portions of 100 c.c. each of hot 2*N* tartaric acid solution and three changes of distilled water. The fabric shall finally be dried, exposed for at least 12 hours to an atmosphere of 65–70 per cent. relative humidity at 65–75° F., and weighed in this controlled atmosphere or immediately after removal therefrom (weight— W_2).

Appendix IV

Determination of "Free" Sulphur

A sample of the sheeting weighing about 4 g. shall be cut into small pieces and accurately weighed. It shall then be placed in a fat-free paper thimble and the latter inserted in the glass extraction cup of a suitable extraction apparatus (see Appendix VIII).

The cup shall be filled with freshly distilled acetone and an equal amount poured into the extraction vessel. After allowing to stand thus overnight, the sample shall be subjected to extraction with hot acetone for a continuous period of 6 hours, during which the cup must be filled and emptied at least 100 times.

The acetone shall then be distilled off from the extracted matter and the latter dried for 1 hour at 90° C.: the vessel containing the extract must not be allowed to stand on the steam-bath after the acetone is removed, as some free sulphur may be lost.

Add to the vessel containing the dried extract 50 ml. of distilled water and 2 ml. of bromine and cover with a watch glass. Allow to stand at least $\frac{1}{2}$ hour on a hot plate or in a water bath at about 70° C., then heat cautiously until the solution is practically colourless: do not boil.

Filter the solution, make up to 250 ml. with distilled water, add 10 ml. of saturated picric acid solution and add slowly, while boiling, 25 ml. of boiling 10 per cent. barium chloride solution. Allow to stand for 4 hours at 90–100° C., filter through an ashless filter paper, and wash the precipitate with hot water until the washings are free from barium chloride. Ignite the paper and precipitate in a weighed crucible at a temperature not exceeding 900° C., moisten with nitric and sulphuric acids, re-ignite, and weigh.

A blank test shall be carried out, using the same quantities of reagents, and the weight of the barium sulphate obtained subtracted from that obtained in the main estimation. From the corrected weight of barium sulphate the percentage of "free" sulphur shall be calculated as follows:—

"Free" sulphur (per cent. on proofing)—

$$\frac{\text{Wt. g. BaSO}_4 \times 13.73 \times W_1}{\text{Wt. g. sample} \times (W_1 - W_2)}$$ where W_1 and W_2 are the weights determined as in Appendix III.

Appendix V

Determination of Alcoholic Potash Extract

Dry the acetone-extracted sample of sheeting (from Appendix IV) in a vacuum at room temperature. Boil the sample in a 200 ml. flask with 50 ml. of N alcoholic potash under a reflux condenser for 4 hours: only metal or ground glass joints shall be used for connecting the condenser to the flask. Filter the liquid, wash the sample thoroughly with two 25 ml. portions of alcohol, and then with hot distilled water. Evaporate the combined filtrate and washings nearly to dryness (2 or 3 ml.), take up with 50 ml. distilled water, and when solution has been effected, cool to room temperature. Transfer to a separating funnel, add dilute (N) hydrochloric acid till the liquid is slightly acid, and extract the acidified liquid completely with ethyl ether. Wash the combined ethereal extracts thoroughly with distilled water. Distil off most of the ether, add a few ml. of acetone to assist removal of water, distil off the remaining ether and acetone, dry the residue for 1 hour at 90° C., cool in air and weigh.

A blank test shall be carried out, using the same quantities of reagents, and the weight of residue obtained subtracted from that obtained in the main estimation. From the corrected weight of residue the alcoholic potash is calculated as follows:—

Alcoholic potash extract (per cent. on proofing)—

$$\frac{\text{Wt. of residue} \times 100 \times W_1}{\text{Wt. of sample} \times (W_1 - W_2)},$$

where W_1 and W_2 are the weights determined as in Appendix III.

Appendix VI

Accelerated Ageing Test

A piece of the sheeting shall be suspended in a thermostatically controlled oven maintained continuously at a temperature of $70 \pm 1^\circ \text{C}$. The whole of that part of the oven containing the specimens shall be kept within these limits and the source of heat shall be outside the chamber containing the specimens. The specimens shall not touch each other or any part of the oven, and shall not be exposed to light. Provision shall be made for a continuous change of air passing uniformly through the oven at a rate corresponding approximately to 3 changes per hour.

The specimens shall be aged thus for a continuous period of 240 hours, and then allowed to cool to room temperature before being examined.

*Appendix VIITensile Testing Machine

The following recommendations as to the requirements of a suitable testing machine are given for general information.

1. The machine should be preferably of the lever type and be capable of measuring the load accurately to within 0.5 per cent.

2. Provision should be made for the load to be applied smoothly without any jerking or intermittent action, and the power should be sufficient to stress the sample to the point of fracture without slowing down.

3. The machine should indicate the actual maximum load reached after the specimen has broken.

4. The jaws of the machine should hold the specimens without slip and without damage.

5. The jaws of the machine should move without undue friction and in perfect alignment.

*Appendix VIIIExtraction Apparatus

The extraction apparatus shall be of the reflux type with the condenser placed immediately above the cup which holds the sample. The cup must be of siphon type and situated in the vapour of the boiling solvent.

Only glass or metal shall be used: there must be no cork, rubber or similar material from which soluble matter may be extracted. It is convenient for the extraction vessel to be of a size that will permit it to be weighed directly, otherwise the solution containing the extract must be transferred to a small flask for evaporation, drying and weighing.

RECOMMENDATIONS FOR MANUFACTURERS OF BED-TABLES

1. That there should be no dust traps.

2. That two feet should be fitted with ball-bearing castors of minimum diameter $2\frac{1}{2}$ in. and two feet with wooden shoes.

3. That the platform should be covered with an inlaid rubber product.

4. That the tilt of the platform should be adjustable.

5. That a tubular frame should be constructed of 1 in. tubing as maximum diameter.

6. That the edge of the platform next to the patient should be straight and not recessed.

7. That the height of the table should be decided in conjunction with the specification for a ward bedstead. (The said specification allows for a height of 27 in. from floor to spring mesh as at present approved.)

BEDSIDE LOCKERS

It is recommended that the following points should be included in any specification for bedside lockers:—

For Adults*Material*

1. The body to be of laminated wood and oiled and not varnished.

2. The top to be of a rubber product inlaid without any raised edge.

Fittings to be incorporated

1. Towel rail.

2. Urinal cupboard extending from side to side of body and having two doors.

3. One drawer.

4. One sponge locker.

5. Recessed handles.

6. Silent fasteners on all doors.

7. Feet to be either—Skates or domes. Castors $2\frac{1}{2}$ in. minimum diameter with ball-bearings.

For Child.

Only variation to the above to be the omission of a sponge drawer and urinal cupboard.

FEES CHARGED FOR X-RAY EXAMINATIONS OF PRIVATE PATIENTS.

Note: The figures represent guineas unless marked otherwise.

In each case the charge covers the cost of examination and the radiologist's report: the number and position of radiographs taken, if any, is in the discretion of the radiologist.

INCOME TAX—SCHEDULE A.

REDUCTION OF TAX ASSESSED ON PARTS OF HOSPITAL BUILDINGS.

Kindly prepared for the Bureau by W. E. C. BAYNES of the Inner Temple, Barrister-at-Law.

1. Lands and buildings belonging to and occupied by a voluntary hospital are, as a general rule, relieved from the payment of income tax under Schedule A. They are in fact assessed, but relief from payment of the tax is granted by the General Commissioners of Income Tax for the Division.

2. Those parts of hospital buildings, however, which are occupied by a person paying rent therefor, or by an individual employee of the hospital whose total cash income from all sources amounts to £150 per annum, are subject to this tax. (For the sake of brevity, these parts of hospital buildings are referred to below as "the taxed premises.")

3. But if the average annual cost of the maintenance, repair, insurance and management of the whole hospital buildings for the preceding five years exceeds the difference between the gross and net assessments of the whole hospital for the current year, then it is allowable to set off a proportionate part of this excess against the assessed value of the taxed premises for the current year, and to reduce the tax payable thereon in the same proportion. This proportion is that which the net assessment of the taxed premises bears to the net assessment of the whole hospital (including the taxed premises).

4. The above statement is unavoidably somewhat involved, and the following example with hypothetical figures is given to explain how the calculation should be worked out.

Suppose that for the year 1939-40,
Gross assessment * of whole hospital is	£250
Allowance † for repairs for year	... 45
Net assessment * of whole hospital	... £205
Net assessment * of taxed premises	... £40
Tax thereon at 7s. in the £	... 14

Now suppose that during the previous five years the average annual expenditure for the maintenance, repair, insurance and management of the whole hospital was £180, then we get the figures,

Average annual expenditure on whole hospital £180
Less repairs allowance for 1939-40...	45
Excess of average expenditure over allowance £135

A proportionate part of this excess of £135 can now be set off against the net assessed value of the taxed premises, the proportion being as £40 (net assessment of taxed premises) is to £205 (net assessment of whole hospital). The amount that can be set off is therefore $\frac{40}{205}$ of £135, which is £26 6s. 9d., and it is set off against £40 (assessed value of the taxed premises).

Consequently the tax would only be payable on the balance, £13 13s. 3d., instead of on £40; that is to say, the tax actually payable in this case would only be £4 15s. 8d. instead of £14.

In the event of the amount of the set-off exceeding the net assessment of the taxed premises, then of course no tax would be payable.

If the tax on £40 for the current year has already been paid, the whole or a proper proportion of it can be recovered.

Recovery of Tax paid in Past Years

5. A hospital can in the same way claim the recovery of the whole or a proper proportion of the tax paid under Schedule A on the taxed premises for the last six years provided the figures for those years, worked out as above, support the claim.

6. If it is proposed to make such a claim for past years, the figures must be worked out for each year separately, based on the average annual expenditure on maintenance, etc., for the five years preceding each of the six years in respect of which the claim is made.

Form of Claim

7. The Inland Revenue form on which claims of this nature must be made is "No. 99, Claim for Additional Relief from Income Tax, Schedule A, in respect of Maintenance, etc., of Property."

8. Intending claimants are recommended to ascertain from the local Inspector of Taxes exactly what accounts, vouchers, etc., must be submitted in support of the claim.

* These figures can be obtained from the Inspector of Taxes.

† For a hospital whose gross annual value exceeds £100, the allowance is one-fifth of the first £100 plus one-sixth of the balance.

HOUSE TO HOUSE COLLECTIONS.

Kindly prepared for the Bureau by W. E. C. BAYNES, of the Inner Temple, Barrister-at-Law.

Prohibition of Unauthorised Collections

1. The House to House Collections Act, 1939, prohibits all house to house collections for charitable purposes which are not duly authorised. As a general rule the authority for making such a collection will be given by a police licence. There are, however, special provisions as regards national collections (see para. 24), and as regards small local collections (see para. 29).

2. The words "house to house" include going from one flat to another, or to business offices, and so on.

What is a Collection?

3. A "Collection" is defined in the Act as meaning going from house to house "making an appeal" for cash or goods.

4. Consequently if collectors go round merely to receive contributions of cash or goods which have already been promised, this is not a collection within the meaning of the Act.

5. The Act would not appear to apply to collecting boxes left on the counters of shops, or in other places accessible to the public.

Scope of the Act

6. The Act applies to the "collection" (as defined above) of goods of any description as well as of money: and it applies equally whether the goods or money are given gratis, or whether the collector sells some article to the contributor, or whether the giver obtains some other quid pro quo, such as, for instance, the privilege of recommending patients for admission to a hospital.

7. The Act also applies when the object of the collection is only partly charitable; that is to say, when it is stated that only part of the money or part of the proceeds of the goods collected will be applied to a charitable purpose.

Contributory Schemes

8. It is understood that the Act was not intended by its promoters to apply at all to collections made under contributory schemes, but unfortunately the Act has been so drafted that it does probably apply to most of such collections.

9. However, having regard to the definition of a "collection" (see para. 3, above), it is possible, if a canvasser for a contributory scheme goes round merely inviting people to join the scheme and explaining its advantages, but is careful not actually to ask for contributions, that this would not constitute a "collection" within the meaning of the Act. But this point is open to some doubt. The actual collection (in the ordinary meaning of the word) of the contributions after they have once been promised does not come within the scope of the Act at all.

10. It is the practice of some contributory schemes to provide their contributors with boxes into which they put their weekly contributions, these boxes being collected from time to time by officials of the schemes. This arrangement of course does not come within the scope of the Act.

Application for Licence

11. Application for a licence to make a house to house collection must be made (in the prescribed form *) to the police authority, or police authorities if more than one, of the area in which it is desired to make the collection.

12. The application should be made by some individual who is willing to promote the collection for the benefit of the hospital, and who is prepared to accept responsibility for the proper supervision and control of the collection in accordance with the Regulations issued by the Home Secretary, see para. 20.

13. The application must, as a general rule, be made not later than the first day of the month preceding that in which it is proposed to commence the collection; but the rule may be relaxed in special circumstances.

Grant and Duration of Licence

14. When the licence is granted, it will as a rule be for not more than twelve months—though it may be for as long as eighteen months if more convenient to the police authority.

15. No provision is made in the Act for the renewal of licences, so that a new application must be made each year as for an original licence.

Refusal or Revocation of Licence

16. Provided the application is made in the prescribed form and the prescribed information is supplied, then the police authority can only refuse to grant a licence, and can only revoke a licence already granted, on one of the following grounds, viz.

(a) That the total amount likely to be applied to charitable purposes is inadequate in proportion to the total likely to be collected.

(b) That an excessive proportion of the amount collected is likely to be (or has been) paid in remuneration.

(c) That the collection is likely to give rise to begging offences, or has given rise to the commission of such an offence.

(d) That the applicant is not a fit and proper person to hold a licence owing to his previous conviction for certain specified offences.

* The prescribed form is set out in the schedule to the Regulations referred to in para. 20.

HOUSE TO HOUSE COLLECTIONS

(e) That the applicant has not in the past selected fit and proper persons to act as collectors, or has not exercised proper supervision over them, or has not prevented unauthorised persons from obtaining collectors' badges or certificates.

(f) That the applicant has not supplied information properly required from him to enable the police authority to satisfy itself on any of these points.

17. When refusing to grant a licence, the police authority must give the applicant notice of the refusal in writing, stating on which of the above grounds the refusal is based.

18. The applicant has a right of appeal to the Home Secretary* against the decision of the police authority. The appeal must be made within fourteen days. The decision of the Home Secretary is final.

Conduct and Supervision of Collections

19. The Regulations made by the Home Secretary* for the conduct and supervision of these collections are too detailed to print at length here. They deal with the responsibility of promoters for the character and good behaviour of collectors; certificates of authority, badges, collecting boxes and receipt books; the duties of collectors with regard to their certificates and badges; the age limit of collectors; the behaviour of collectors, and how money is to be collected by them; the return of collection boxes and receipt books by collectors, and their examination; envelope collections; the promoters' accounts, their form, certification and vouching; and the final disposal of certificates and badges.

20. Anyone proposing to promote a house to house collection for a hospital should first obtain a copy of these regulations, viz., The House to House Collections (England) Provisional Regulations, dated the 9th December, 1939; or, in Scotland, similar Regulations made by the Secretary for Scotland, dated the 12th December, 1939. Price 4d.

21. Although these Regulations may at first sight appear somewhat formidable, it is not thought that they should offer any difficulty in practice. In fact it is probable that any properly managed house to house collection would ordinarily be supervised in much the same way as is now made compulsory by these Regulations.

Penalties

22. The Act provides for penalties of imprisonment up to six months, or a fine up to £100, or both, for

(a) Any unauthorised person who promotes a house to house collection.

(b) Any unauthorised person who makes use of collectors' badges or certificates, or colourable imitations of them.

(c) Any person who, when giving information for the purposes of the Act, knowingly or recklessly makes any false statement.

23. Smaller penalties are imposed for minor infringements of the Act.

National Collections

24. Where the charitable purpose for which the collection is to be made is pursued throughout the whole or a large part of England and Wales, or of Scotland, and it is desired to make a house to house collection throughout that area, application should be made to the Home Secretary* for an Order authorising such a collection to be made without the necessity of obtaining police licences for the various police areas concerned.

25. It is possible that a hospital which admits patients from all parts of England and Wales, or of Scotland, might wish to make such an extended collection.

26. The effect of an Order made by the Home Secretary will be the same as though a police licence had been obtained for each police area concerned, except that the Order does not require renewal, but remains in force until revoked by the Home Secretary—which he has power to do at any time, apparently without being required to give any reason therefor.

27. Accounts of these collections must be submitted annually to the Home Secretary, and in the event of revocation of the Order a final account must be submitted to him within three months after the revocation.

28. The conduct and supervision of these national collections are subject to much the same rules (apart from the points mentioned above) as a house to house collection that is made under a police licence, see para. 19, above.

Small Local Collections

29. If it is desired to make a house to house collection which is purely local in character, and is to be completed in a short time, application may be made to the chief officer of police for the area in which it is to be made for a certificate authorising such a collection. If granted, such a certificate exempts the holder of it from all the provisions of the Act and of the Regulations mentioned in para. 19, above, except that any collector, or presumed collector, must declare his name and address, and sign his name, if required to do so by a police constable.

30. Collectors should not be supplied with collectors' badges or certificates for these local collections.

31. There is no explanation in the Act as to what is meant by the terms "local in character" and "a short time," and their interpretation is apparently left to the police.

* The Secretary for Scotland takes the place of the Home Secretary as regards all collections in Scotland.

PROVISION OF FOOD AND LODGING, ETC., IN LIEU OF WAGES.

By W. E. C. BAYNES, of the Inner Temple, Barrister-at-Law.

1. The Truck Acts require all wages to be paid to "workmen" in cash, and make it illegal (as a general rule) to provide them with food, lodging, or other advantages as part payment for their labour. They also contain provisions relating to the imposition of fines.

2. Wages paid in kind, or otherwise in contravention of the provisions of the Truck Acts, are considered as not having been paid at all, and the total amount may be recovered by the workman for the last twenty years before the date when proceedings are commenced.

3. The Home Secretary has announced that a Bill will shortly be introduced to bar claims against employers for the recovery of the value of food and other advantages provided in the past in lieu of wages, but only in those cases where the value of remuneration in this form might properly have been deducted from wages if there had been an agreement in writing to this effect (see para. 11). It should be noted that the proposed Act will apply only to the past and not to the future.

Who are Workmen?

4. The Truck Acts apply only to "workmen"; these are defined as being any labourer, servant in husbandry, journeyman, artificer, handicraftsman, or other person engaged in manual labour, but excluding domestic and menial servants. "Workmen" includes women.

5. Exactly which categories of the usual hospital employees come within this definition cannot be stated with certainty as there have been few relevant cases decided by the Courts to interpret its meaning.

6. The following suggestions are made as a general guide. In cases of doubt, however, it will obviously be wise to assume that the employee is a workman, and to have an agreement with him in writing, as explained below.

(a) Nursing Staff. Although nurses do much work with their hands, their work has never been looked upon as what is ordinarily called "manual labour," and they may safely be considered as outside the definition.

(b) Domestic Staff. Domestic and menial servants are specially exempted from the operation of the Acts.

(c) Engineers, Carpenters, Plumbers, Painters, Handy-men and Window-cleaners. These employees are certainly "workmen" within the above definition when employed to do the usual work of their respective crafts.

(d) Chauffeurs. It has been decided that a Chauffeur who is required to do his own repairs is within the definition, but if he does little but drive the car it seems that he would be outside it.

(e) Porters. It is difficult to say whether porters should be considered as manual labourers or as domestic servants. The answer in every case must depend on the precise duties they have to perform, that is to say, if they are mainly engaged on what are ordinarily considered household duties, they will be outside the scope of the Act, but not otherwise.

(f) Stokers, Boilermen and Laundrymen. These categories of employees would appear to come within the definition if their work in those capacities is their main occupation; but they would probably not come within it if such work is merely incidental to domestic work.

(g) Gardeners. While most of the provisions of the Truck Acts apply to gardeners, there is a special clause making it allowable to provide them with food, non-alcoholic drink, a cottage or other allowances or privileges in addition to money wages as remuneration for their services, without the necessity for any agreement in writing.

What is Forbidden.

7. Subject to the exceptions mentioned in paragraphs 9-11, an employer may not pay his workmen their wages in kind instead of in cash, or partly in kind and partly in cash; he may not agree to pay his workmen cash wages and free meals in addition; he may not require his workmen to expend any part of their wages in a particular manner or at particular places; he may not make deductions from their wages for anything provided by him.

8. There are also provisions relating to the imposition and payment of fines, but it is not thought that hospitals impose fines on any of their employees, and it appears unnecessary to treat of this matter here.

What is Permissible.

9. It is permissible for an employer to supply a workman with medicine, medical attendance, fuel, lodging or a house, and victuals dressed or prepared and consumed on the premises, and for the workman to pay him therefor—that is to say, this is permissible if the workman first receives his full wages, and then pays back to the employer the price of what is so provided.

10. It is also permissible to supply servants in husbandry (which presumably includes gardeners) with certain allowances in addition to money wages, without any agreement in writing, see para. 6 (g).

11. It is also permissible for an employer to agree with any "workman" to provide him with medicine, medical attendance, fuel, lodging, a house, and victuals dressed or prepared and consumed on the premises, and to make a stoppage or deduction from the workman's wages to pay therefor, but for this to be legal there must be an agreement in writing, signed by the workman, authorising the employer to make such deductions.

Agreements in Writing.

12. If, therefore, a hospital wishes to enter into an agreement with workmen for the provision of meals, lodging, etc., they should be asked to sign an agreement in writing authorising the hospital to make such provision and to deduct the value of the same from their wages.

13. The following form is given as a sample agreement for the engagement of employees who come within the scope of the Truck Acts. It must, of course, be adapted for the use of any particular hospital.

14. One form may be signed by any number of employees. A copy signed by the secretary of the hospital on behalf of the committee should be supplied to any employee who wishes for one.

15. For the sake of simplicity the agreement is so drawn that it can only be used for a group of signatory employees who all receive the same emoluments. So that if one group is boarded, and another group receives only dinner and tea, and another group only dinner, each group must sign a different agreement.

16. No stamp is required for this agreement so long as it is only used for employees coming within the scope of the Truck Acts.

Suggested Form of Service Agreement.

An AGREEMENT made between the..... Hospital at(hereinafter called the hospital) of the one part and all those whose signatures are set at the end of this agreement (hereinafter called the undersigned employees) of the other part WHEREBY IT IS AGREED AS FOLLOWS :

1. The hospital agrees to employ the undersigned employees and each of the undersigned employees agrees to serve the hospital and to carry out such duties as may be required of him.

2. The employment of each of the undersigned employees shall begin as from the date appearing in the first column below opposite his signature and shall be for one week and so on from week to week until terminated as hereinafter provided.

3. The hospital shall provide the undersigned employees with [dinner and tea each day, or full board and lodging, or as may be], the estimated and agreed value of which is £..... per annum * for each employee.

4. The undersigned employees are entitled to the weekly wages appearing in the fourth column below opposite their signatures respectively. From these wages the hospital is authorised to deduct the sum of shillings per week in payment of the [meals, or as may be] to be provided as hereinbefore agreed, leaving to be paid to the undersigned employees in cash the sums appearing in the third column below opposite their respective names.

5. The undersigned employees shall not be entitled to wages while incapacitated by sickness or accident, but during the first [four] weeks of any such incapacity [during any consecutive twelve months] the hospital will make to each employee so incapacitated such payment as, when added to the amount of sickness benefit received by him under the National Health Insurance Acts, or to the amount of compensation received under the Workmen's Compensation Acts, will be equal to the cash wages he was receiving immediately before his sickness or accident.

6. The undersigned employees shall be entitled to [two] weeks' holiday [with wages] during each year at such times as shall be convenient to the hospital.

7. This agreement may be terminated as regards any one of the undersigned employees at any time on at least [one] week's notice being given by such employee or by the hospital, the notice to terminate on a usual pay-day. But after a period of [four] weeks' incapacity to work the employment shall be taken to have been duly terminated by the hospital without any notice having been given.

Date.	Signatures.	Weekly Cash Wages.	Total Weekly Wages.

Note.—No stamp is required on an agreement for the employment of artificers, labourers or domestic servants.

* The object of stating the value per annum is to avoid the necessity of paying the value of emoluments during holidays in addition to cash wages.

April, 1940.

FOOD CONTROL (NATIONAL RATIONING).

REGISTRATION.

A hospital must be registered as an Institution by its responsible head, at the Food Control Office of its district.

(No return of stocks need now be made.)

RATION BOOKS.

Staff.

Resident Members.

All resident members of the staff of an Institution must have a ration book. It is the duty of the Institution to "collect the ration book complete with all the leaves thereof . . . retain the same . . . and at the end of the period of residence detach, retain, and when required by the Food Control Committee . . . produce the appropriate coupons corresponding to the period of residence."

It is "the duty of every person coming to reside in any Institution to deliver his ration book . . . complete with all the leaves thereof."

Non-Resident Members.

Where a non-resident member of the staff "habitually takes all his meals" in the Institution he should be treated as a resident for the purposes of the food rationing regulations.

Where a non-resident member of the staff takes only a part of his meals in the Institution the same regulations apply as in the case of Catering Establishments, i.e.: no coupons are to be collected, for the present, for rationed foods issued; but the ration must be limited to the amounts authorised, which in the case of butter and sugar are calculated as follows:—

Butter: One-third of an oz. per person per meal.

Sugar: One-seventh of an oz. per person per meal, plus one-seventh of an oz. for each hot beverage served.

Note.—A meal means breakfast, lunch, midday dinner, afternoon tea, late dinner or supper.

Patients.

For the purposes of rationing, patients are classed as residents and the same regulations apply, i.e. they must surrender their ration books "together with all the leaves thereof," and it is the duty of the Institution to "collect the ration book complete with all the leaves thereof . . . retain same . . . and at the end of the period of residence detach, retain and when required by the Food Control Committee . . . produce the appropriate coupons corresponding to the period of residence."

Ministry of Health circular E.M.S./Gen./291 (21st November, 1939).

The last paragraph of the circular reads:—

"Patients' ration books will not be used while the patients are inmates of the hospital, and the absence of a ration book would, therefore, raise no difficulty in the case of either a civilian or a service casualty."

This appears, prima facie, to be inconsistent with the instructions contained in the Food Rationing Order. The Ministries concerned have, however, explained that the words "patients' ration books will not be used" are intended to mean that "if a casualty is admitted to a hospital without a ration book, this will entail no difficulty in obtaining supplies of rationed foods for the patient since the hospital supplies are obtained without the use of ration books." The Ministry of Food regulations therefore stand, and ration books of patients must be collected and appropriate coupons detached.

The object of detaching coupons is to ensure that persons do not obtain extra rations. It in no way affects the quantity of rationed foods a hospital can obtain either wholesale or retail, this being determined as shown below.

Collecting of Ration Books.

Section 21 of the Rationing Order places upon the Institution the duty to "collect from each person for the time being residing therein his ration book complete with the leaves thereof." It does not oblige the hospital to collect the book or missing leaves from any one else. The Ministry of Food naturally expects hospitals to do what they can to obtain patients' ration books where they arrive without them or where leaves are missing (e.g. because they have been deposited in advance with a retailer) and will be very grateful for any assistance the hospitals can give in making the Rationing Scheme effective; but the Ministry does not expect the hospitals to go to any undue trouble or expense in this connection. Where ration books or missing leaves cannot be obtained without difficulty the hospital should advise the Local Food Office of the district in which the patient resides, giving the names and addresses of the retailers with whom the patient is registered or the pages of coupons have been deposited. The Food Office should send the ration book or missing leaves to the hospital, but where the patient is likely to be discharged before they can be received the local Food Office should be advised accordingly so that it can retain them till the patient can call or send for them.

FOOD CONTROL (NATIONAL RATIONING)

Detaching of Coupons.

It is not necessary for the coupons to be detached every day or even every week. It is sufficient if coupons to date are detached when the patient or resident leaves the hospital.

Broken Periods.

No hard-and-fast rules can be laid down with regard to the detachment of coupons for unexpired periods, i.e. periods of less than a week. The Rationing Order provides that in the case of Catering Establishments coupons shall be detached from ration books of persons residing therein for five or more consecutive nights; but it is not clear that this regulation applies to Institutions. The matter must therefore be left to the discretion of each hospital. In the case of patients it is suggested that they should always be given the benefit of the doubt.

Retention of Coupons.

All detached coupons, whether from patients' or residents' ration books, should be retained by the hospital, and should be produced when required by the Food Control Committee with whom the hospital is registered or by any person authorised in that behalf by such Committee. The coupons need not be sent to the Food Control Committee.

Nurses.

A nurse may have an ordinary ration book or a traveller's ration book according to her work and at the discretion of the Food Control Committee.

FOODS RATIONED.

The foods subject to rationing are :—

	Weekly ration.
Meat	1s. 10d. a week.
Bacon and/or Ham	8 ozs.
Butter	8 ozs.
Sugar	12 ozs.

Note.—No supplementary allowances are being made in respect of particular illnesses.

WHOLESALE SUPPLIES.

Where an Institution has been in the habit of purchasing supplies wholesale it may, with the consent of the Food Control Committee, continue to do so.

The procedure is as follows :—

For each class of supplies, forms (Preliminary Demand Notes) must be completed showing the estimated average weekly quantity required during the first four weeks of rationing. The estimate must be based on the authorised ration. Two portions of each form, marked clearly "Wholesale Demand," must be sent to the local Food Office, the third retained. The Institution will then receive buying permits from the Food Office. These permits, which are also an authority to deliver not more than the amounts specified, should be forwarded to the supplier named thereon. The permit should be accompanied by a formal order in the usual way.

Returns must be made to the Food Control Committee showing quantities purchased wholesale. These returns must be made fortnightly (for the preceding fortnight) in the case of meat, bacon and ham, and four-weekly (for the preceding four weeks) in the case of butter and sugar.

RETAIL SUPPLIES.

Institutions purchasing retail must register with retailers, from whom alone they will thereafter be able to purchase. Registration is effected by lodging the appropriate forms (Preliminary Demand Notes).

For each class of supplies, forms (Preliminary Demand Notes) must be completed, showing the estimated average weekly quantity required during the first four weeks of rationing. The estimate must be based on the authorised ration. One portion of each form must be sent to the retailer, another to the local Food Office, the third retained.

METHOD OF ORDERING RETAIL.

Each ORDER for rationed food must be written, in duplicate, in an official Order Book supplied by the local Food Office. One copy of the order must be handed to the retailer.

RECORDS.

All Institutions must keep a register of food consumed by them and of persons resident and meals served. The Register is kept on Form R.G.M. 2, but columns 5, 7-10, 15, 17-20, 27 and 29-31 should be ignored, also the words "and margarine" in columns 4, 14 and 26. The register must be open to inspection by any person duly authorised by the Food Control Committee or by the Minister of Food, and must be produced at the local Food Office when required.

The Order Book (for retail purchases only), with duplicate pages complete, must likewise be open to inspection and must be produced at the local Food Office when a fresh Order Book is needed.

FOOD CONTROL (NATIONAL RATIONING)GENERAL.

Institutions are not bound to supply any specified amount to any particular person provided that, on the average of the total number of persons each week, the total quantity calculated in accordance with the appropriate scale is not exceeded.

MEAT SUPPLIES.

The following is the result of enquiries addressed to the Ministry of Food arising out of a query raised by a London hospital whose meat supplier, although under contract, had intimated that he must in future charge full retail prices, less 5 per cent., unless the order could be increased from 200 lbs. to 1000 lbs. per week:—

The Government is now the sole importer and wholesale distributor of meat. All wholesale meat suppliers have been taken over by the Government.

If a supplier is continuing in business it is as a retailer. In the past, where the supplier was delivering meat "cut up," he was in fact acting as a wholesaler-retailer, although the hospital may have been under the impression that he was selling wholesale.

If a hospital wishes to purchase wholesale, it may continue to do so, but application must be made to the local Food Office. The hospital may, however, find difficulty in purchasing wholesale unless it is prepared to take whole carcasses or half sides (i.e. not cut up). If a hospital requires its meat "cut up" it may find that it can only purchase retail.

Maximum prices have been fixed by the Government for retail meat, to prevent overcharging.

No minimum prices have been fixed, and it is open to a hospital to negotiate with its retailer a reduction on maximum prices.

If a hospital is not satisfied with the reduction offered it is at liberty to approach another retailer.

UNEXPIRED CONTRACTS.

With regard to unexpired contracts for meat the Ministry of Food declined to give a definite ruling, but offered the following advice:—

The matter should be discussed with the supplier, and the hospital should meet him if it feels able to do so. The price of chilled meat to the retailer has in fact been raised recently. Failing a satisfactory agreement there is no reason why the hospital should agree to an increase of price so far as the unexpired portion of any contract is concerned.

On the subject of unexpired contracts in general the following is the advice of Sir William Baynes, Honorary Legal Adviser to the British Hospitals Association:—

Where a supplier claims that he must vary the price fixed in a contract he should be asked to state on what Government Order or Regulation his claim is based. Failing such an Order or Regulation he has no right to vary the terms of the contract.

Where the supplier can show that he would now be supplying at a loss if the contract prices were adhered to, it is suggested that a reasonable solution would be for the hospital to offer to make up that loss, but not to provide him with a profit or an increase of profit.

The hospital is entitled to hold the supplier to his contract if it so wishes, for had prices fallen the supplier would have been entitled to retain the increased profits which would have accrued to him.

It is difficult to understand what the particular supplier mentioned above meant by stating that he must charge retail prices, less 5 per cent., unless the order could be increased from 200 lbs. to 1000 lbs. per week. The question of quantity does not appear to affect the issue.

COMPETITIVE TENDER.

The following circular from the Ministry of Food was issued to all hospitals in March:—

The Ministry of Food has had under consideration the question of the supply under contract of rationed foodstuffs to Institutions.

Under existing arrangements the negotiating powers of such Institutions are curtailed, and it has been represented that the restriction of liberty to place fresh contracts where they please on renewal vitiates the principle of competitive tender.

Such Institutions should be permitted to place contracts where they please and the various commodity control schemes will be adapted where necessary to provide for this concession.

Permits for the purchase by wholesale of rationed foods are issued monthly and, to facilitate any adjustments that may be necessary, any Institution desiring to change its suppliers should give one month's notice of its intention to the appropriate local Food Control Committee. Steps should also be taken to ensure that contracts terminate at a date co-incident with the termination of a monthly buying period.

MILK SUPPLIES (ENGLAND AND WALES).

CONTRACTS BETWEEN PRODUCERS AND CONSUMERS.

The prices per gallon for milk fixed by the Milk Marketing Board (known as regional prices) are as follows :—

1940.	s.	d.
April	1	4	per gallon.
May	1	1½	"
June	1	1½	"
*July	1	4	"
*August	1	4	"
*September	1	4	"

The regional price for milk of T.T. grade sold as such will be 2d. per gallon higher than that for ordinary grades.

The premiums payable in addition to the regional prices are the same as under the contracts for the year commencing October 1938, which were subsequently extended, viz. :—

- (a) Under contracts where the producer is allowed 10 per cent. variation above or below the stated daily quantity required ½d. per gallon.
- (b) Under contracts for a fixed daily quantity throughout the whole period of the contract 1d. "
- (c) Under contracts for such quantity as may be agreed upon daily 1½d. "

(The form of contract provides for higher premiums on a sliding scale for sales of less than ten gallons daily under (c), but this does not apply to voluntary hospitals, the premium being 1½d. per gallon whatever quantity may be purchased.)

As mentioned on previous occasions it is possible to enter into a contract under (a) or under (b) for the bulk of the supply and in the same contract to provide for any surplus requirements under the heading "Special Services" which, if the service takes the form of a variable quantity daily would involve a minimum premium of 1½d. per gallon. To give an example—a voluntary hospital where the minimum requirement on any day during the period of the contract is 20 gallons and a maximum on any day of 25 gallons could contract for the 20 gallons on basis (a) (where 10 per cent. variation is allowed to the supplier) and complete the section of the contract headed "Special Services" as follows :—

The Vendor shall sell such additional quantity as may be agreed upon daily over and above the quantity provided for in Clause 4c for the Special Services premium of 1½d. per gallon.

Under this arrangement the minimum quantity of milk required on any day in the year would be supplied at the lowest premium, the highest premium being paid only on any additional quantity.

CONTRACTS BETWEEN WHOLESALERS AND CONSUMERS.

Although, as in the case of contracts between producers and consumers, the regulations of the Milk Marketing Board provide for increased premiums where only small quantities are supplied daily, the regulations permit of sales to voluntary hospitals at 1½d. per gallon above the regional price whether large or small quantities are supplied.

RETAIL PURCHASES.

"Sale by retail" under the scheme means a sale not exceeding one gallon. There are various controlled retail prices based upon the population of the area, and the prices also vary periodically. Voluntary hospitals making retail purchases are in no different position from any other member of the public.

PURCHASES FROM PRODUCERS—NOT UNDER CONTRACT.

A voluntary hospital which purchases its supplies otherwise than under a contract, direct from a producer who holds a licence to sell by retail may obtain them at 1½d. per gallon above the regional price. Sales of this nature are called "semi-retail" and are confined to quantities exceeding 1 gallon and not exceeding 10 gallons.

Tuberculin tested milk bottled on the farm may be purchased at the following prices above the regional price for tuberculin tested milk.

For quantities not exceeding 6 gallons	6d.	per consignment.
For quantities exceeding 6 gallons but not exceeding 10 gallons	4d.	"
For quantities exceeding 10 gallons	3d.	"

* The prices quoted for July, August and September may, however, be amended later.

ORTHOPÆDIC PATIENTS.

FINANCIAL ARRANGEMENTS BETWEEN LOCAL AUTHORITIES AND VOLUNTARY HOSPITALS FOR THEIR TREATMENT.

Notes.—In some instances hospitals have separate arrangements with different Local Authorities; these are indicated by numbers, e.g. (1), (2), etc.

Under Section 184 of the Public Health Act, 1936, it is the duty of every Local Authority to recover from any person who has been maintained by them in an institution, the expenses incurred. The Act also provides for special arrangements being made with any Association or Fund in lieu of recovering from the beneficiary. The following list gives several examples of reduced fees being paid in respect of dependents of members of Contributory Schemes on the understanding that the Public Authority does not attempt to recover the cost from the contributor.

INCREASE OF SUBSCRIPTIONS BY MEANS OF SEVEN-YEAR COVENANTS.

By W. E. C. BAYNES of the Inner Temple, Barrister-at-Law.

Following the passing of the Finance (No. 2) Act, 1939, the standard rate of income tax is 5s. 6d. in the £ for the first quarter of the financial year—6th April, 1939, to 5th April, 1940—and 7s. 6d. in the £ for the remaining three quarters. This works out at the rate of 7s. in the £ for the whole year, and it is provided that for most purposes the standard rate is to be deemed to be 7s. in the £ for the whole year.

As I understand the Act, the effect of this is that a hospital can recover income tax at the rate of 7s. in the £ on all covenanted subscriptions payable in respect of the present financial year.

Consequently if the claim has not yet been made it should be made out at the rate of 7s. in the £ for the year ending 5th April, 1940.

Where income tax has already been claimed from the Inland Revenue at the rate of 5s. 6d. in the £, a further 1s. 6d. in the £ can now be claimed.

WITH INCOME TAX AT 7s. IN THE £.

EXPLANATORY NOTES

Object of Survey.

THE object of this Survey is the presentation in as full detail as possible of the position of the Hospitals in Great Britain and Ireland with reference to :—

- (a) The facilities available for treatment and the extent to which they are utilised,
- (b) The annual cost involved and the several sources from which the funds are derived.

Arrangement of Tables.

In the main tables the Voluntary Hospitals are grouped under the headings :—

Group A. Hospitals having 100 or more beds.

Group B. Hospitals having 30 to 99 beds.

Group C. Hospitals having less than 30 beds.

In addition, Tables of the details of the work and finances of the following special groups are given :—

General Hospitals associated with Medical Schools.

				without Medical Schools		containing 200 or more available beds.

Children's Hospitals ; Ear, Nose and Throat Hospitals ; Eye Hospitals ; Women's Hospitals ; Maternity Hospitals, etc. ; etc.

Omission from the tables of certain Hospitals.

As announced in the 1939 edition of the Year-Book (page xlv), the figures of hospitals which, after full notice, have failed to comply with certain minimum requirements in uniform accounting, do not appear in these Tables. These requirements are :—

- (a) The rendering of an Annual Report by a prescribed date—for the present edition, the 30th September, 1939; for succeeding years, early notice will be given.
- (b) The adoption of the Calendar Year for the Annual Accounts. In certain cases, where the accounts of 1938 were not actually compiled for the calendar year, a definite undertaking to make the necessary change not later than the 31st December, 1939, has been accepted as compliance.
- (c) The presentation of the accounts on the lines laid down in the Revised Uniform System of Hospital Accounts, or (temporarily) in a form admitting of adjustment to comply with it. Explanations and notes of the effect of this requirement on certain hospitals will be found on pp. 66, 127 and 160.

Adjustments to figures.

An attempt has been made to present the figures of all hospitals upon the basis of the Revised Uniform System of Hospital Accounts. Slight divergences from the figures published in the Annual Reports of a few hospitals will consequently be found.

The figures in the Tables giving particulars of groups of hospitals include the returns made by a few hospitals covering a period longer than 12 months. This is generally due to some such cause as the changing of the date of the termination of the official year.

Definition of London area.

For the purposes of the Statistical Tables and the Directory of Voluntary Hospitals, London is regarded as the area covered by King Edward's Hospital Fund for London, viz., 11 miles from St. Paul's Cathedral. This area includes portions of the counties of Essex, Hertfordshire, Kent, Middlesex and Surrey in addition to the whole of the County of London. Similarly, all hospitals under the control of the London County Council are grouped together, whether they are situated in the County of London or not.

"Available" beds of London hospitals.

The figures of "available" beds of the London hospitals are the average daily bed complement during the year after deducting beds temporarily closed for Rebuilding, Extensions, Repairs, or other causes.

Pay Beds.

On pp. 60 and 61 will be found a note on the new departure relating to Pay Beds in London Hospitals, in the Statistical Summary of King Edward's Hospital Fund for 1938.

Thanks.

The Editors desire to express thanks to King Edward's Hospital Fund for London, to the Chairmen and Officers of the Voluntary Hospitals and to the Public Authorities who have kindly supplied information.

In view of the higher cost of a Pay Bed than of one in a General Ward of a hospital, and the steady growth of Pay Wards, King Edward's Hospital Fund for London no longer finds it adequate to show, as the "Cost of an Occupied Bed," an average cost covering both General and Pay Wards, and in the Statistical Summary for 1938 shows (as far as practicable) separate figures for the cost of General Ward Beds alone. To this end the Tables of the Summary now show the expenditure and receipts for Pay Beds separately from those for General Ward Beds, and the figures given as Cost of a Bed are calculated after eliminating Pay Bed expenditure.

But for 1938 a large number of London Hospitals had not separated this expenditure completely. Of the 16 Groups into which the Summary divides the 146 hospitals only 3 groups (21 hospitals) were able to make the division completely, while in other groups a number of hospitals were unable to do it; so that the Occupied Bed costs still contain Pay Bed expenditure. In these circumstances it has not been possible, in these Year Book Tables under Groups A, B and C (which have nothing to do with the 16 Groups of the Statistical Summary) to attempt any elimination of Pay Bed expenditure in 1938.

Note.—The following hospitals, whose accounts are otherwise satisfactory, did not classify their maintenance expenditure as enjoined in the Revised Uniform System of Hospital Accounts on which the preceding Table (5) is based. As it has not been found possible to correct their classification no alternative has been left but to omit their expenditure from this one table. This greatly lessens the value of one of the most important tables of the series and it is desired that each hospital concerned may examine its classification of expenditure with a view to adopting for the future that followed by the 802 conforming hospitals.

COSTING TABLES

Tables 16 and 17. Average cost of an In-patient per week.

Tables 18 and 19. Average cost per Out-patient attendance.

The names of hospitals that do not separate Out-patient from In-patient expenditure will not be found in Tables 16 to 19 inclusive, but in a separate List following Table 19. Figures prepared by such hospitals, purporting to show the weekly cost of an In-patient without any separation of Out-patient expenditure, are not published, as they would only mislead.

The occurrence in Table 16 and 17 of a hospital's name, followed by an unanalysed weekly cost, denotes that the cost of an Out-patient attendance has been arrived at by some method other than that enjoined by the Revised Uniform System of Hospital Accounts. Such a weekly cost is not convincing but is perhaps of sufficient value to justify the retention in the Table of the hospital's name long enough to give a limited opportunity for adopting the authorised method, and so enabling a detailed analysis under the prescribed heads of expenditure to be made. If this improvement is not carried through, at latest, in preparing the figures for the year 1940, the name of the hospital will be removed from the Table to the separate List above mentioned.

TABLE 16.

AVERAGE COST OF EACH IN-PATIENT PER WEEK IN GENERAL HOSPITALS FOR THE YEAR 1938.

NOTE.—Reference is made on pages 64 and 65 to the separation of the cost of "Pay Beds" from that of beds in General Wards by hospitals in the London area. It has not been possible to make any such separation in the following figures.

(a) In the London County Council hospitals, there is a "group" scheme for consultant and specialist services. The general hospitals are divided into seven groups and the services of 9 dermatologists, 13 ear, nose and throat specialists, 8 obstetricians and gynaecologists, 12 ophthalmologists, 9 orthopaedists, 13 paediatrists, 18 physicians, 10 radiologists, 19 surgeons, 8 urologists and 19 anaesthetists are regularly utilised. There are panels comprising 3 neuro-surgeons and 8 neurologists, and these specialists are called in when required. There are also a number of part-time consultants and specialists employed in special units and at special hospitals. In addition, 5 full-time radiologists are employed at groups of general hospitals and 6 obstetricians and gynaecologists working approximately half-time for the Council are attached to selected general hospitals. Tuberculosis officers of the metropolitan boroughs are honorary consultants for tuberculosis in the general hospitals. Dental facilities are available at all the Council's hospitals.

LONDON COUNTY COUNCIL.

Address : County Hall, Westminster Bridge, S.E. 1. Tel. Waterloo 5000.
Medical Officer of Health : W. Allen Daley, M.D., F.R.C.P.

NOTES.
Ambulances.—The Council controls its own Ambulance service; for particulars see page 288.
Pathological Services.—A pathological service is available to all hospitals through a number of group laboratories, which are staffed by pathologists, assistant pathologists, and technicians. Each group laboratory is responsible for the pathological work of hospitals in its district. The majority of the general hospitals included in this scheme are also each provided with a hospital laboratory staffed by a technician, where routine pathological work is done.

HOME AMBULANCE SERVICE

Telephone : Sloane 9828 & 7136.

Headquarters : The Joint Council of the Order of St. John and the British Red Cross Society, 12, Grosvenor Crescent, London, S.W. 1.

THE Home Ambulance Service of the Order of St. John and the British Red Cross Society was set up in 1919 with the intention of providing better means of transport for the sick and injured throughout the country.

The end of the War afforded an opportunity for meeting a want that had become seriously urgent.

At the time the Armistice was signed, a large number of the ambulances of the Order and Society was still effective. Many had been shattered by enemy gun-fire. There was, however, a considerable number that could be made available for a further period of service.

Happily it was at this moment that the two organisations decided that the need for united efforts had not ceased with the War. It was arranged that for certain purposes they should continue to work together in promoting the health of the community, and one of the first steps they undertook in that direction was the organisation of a National Ambulance Service for England, Ireland and Wales.

The Committee has every reason to believe that the Home Ambulance Service has become an important link in the chain of organisations for the promotion of the health of the community, and that the co-operation of the Order of St. John and the British Red Cross Society in its establishment has been justified by the result.

HOSPITAL SERVICE AND PRIVATE HIRE.

Arrangements may be made by telephone or letter for the conveyance of patients from London to any part of the country.

A male attendant always accompanies the driver of the ambulance.

A charge of 10s. is made for the conveyance of a patient from any address within the administrative County of London to any Hospital in the same area.

By arrangement with Hospital Almoners a service is maintained for the transfer of patients from Hospitals to Convalescent Homes.

A female attendant accompanies all convalescent cases and if sufficient notice is given a similar arrangement may be made for the Private Hire Service.

LONDON COUNTY COUNCIL AMBULANCE SERVICE.

HEADQUARTERS : THE COUNTY HALL, S.E. 1. Telephone No. : Waterloo 3311.

I. Ambulances Supplied without Payment.

THE Council provides, within the Administrative County of London, ambulances, free of cost, for the conveyance to :—

A. Hospitals and/or private residences of :—

Persons meeting with accidents or suffering from sudden illnesses in the streets, public places, places of employment, etc.

B. Hospitals :—

(i) Persons meeting with accidents in their homes ;

(ii) Persons suffering from illnesses in their homes if a medical practitioner certifies that the case is one of life or death, and that arrangements have been made for the reception of the patient in a hospital ;

(iii) Parturient women, if the case is one of urgency, whether from the home, place of business, or elsewhere, on the application of a qualified medical practitioner or certified midwife, provided that either a doctor or midwife accompanies the case ; and

(iv) Non-urgent cases of parturition.

In such cases admission to a maternity bed must have previously been arranged and a card (issued by the Council to hospitals and municipal maternity homes) for such admission obtained. This card must be handed to the ambulance attendant at the time of removal.

In these cases a nurse or a female friend must accompany the patient. The patient may also be accompanied by her husband.

(Note.—The Corporation of the City of London maintains its own ambulance service for dealing with cases of accident and illness occurring in the streets within the City area.)

How to obtain an ambulance for :—

Cases coming under classes A and B (i).

No telephone number is required ; dial “ 999 ” and ask the operator for “ AMBULANCE.”

Cases coming under classes B (ii), (iii) and (iv).

Ask the telephone operator (or dial) for one of the headquarters telephone numbers, namely : WATERloo 6000, NEW Cross 2645, CENTral 6301, or REGent 4000.

When communication has been effected, particulars should be clearly given in this order : Place of accident or illness, name of the caller.

C. The Council's hospitals for infectious cases.

D. The Council's hospitals and institutions for non-infectious cases.

In cases coming under class D no charge is made at the time of removal, but there is a liability to assessment of a charge based on the patient's ability to pay.

II. Ambulances Supplied on Payment.

E. Ambulances and ambulance omnibuses are also provided by the Council, when not required for the purposes stated above, on payment of charges, as laid down from time to time by the Council, for the conveyance of infectious and non-infectious cases between private houses, hospitals (other than to the Council's hospitals, etc., under the provisions of Section I) nursing homes and for examinations, consultations and treatment by specialists or at special establishments.

The conveyance of private persons between addresses both of which are outside the administrative county of London cannot be undertaken, unless in circumstances of exceptional urgency.

Arrangements for the reception of an infectious case must be made by or on behalf of the patient before application for an ambulance is sent to the Council.

How to obtain an ambulance for :—

Cases coming under classes C, D and E :—

Application should be made by telephone to Headquarters Telephone No. WATERloo 3311, when full information and the charge for any proposed removal may be obtained at any hour of the day or night, including Sundays and public holidays.

UNIVERSITY OF ABERDEEN

FACULTY OF MEDICINE

The Faculty of Medicine embraces Twelve Chairs, besides Lectureships, from which instruction is given in all the main departments of Medical Science. Instruction is also given in special departments of medical practice by Lecturers appointed by the University Court. Clinical Instruction is obtained in various Hospitals and other Institutions in Aberdeen.

The Degrees in Medicine granted by the University are: Bachelor of Medicine and Bachelor of Surgery (M.B., Ch.B.), Doctor of Medicine (M.D.), Master of Surgery (Ch.M.). The Degree of Doctor of Philosophy (Ph.D.) is also granted in this Faculty. They are conferred only after examination, and only on students of the University. A Diploma in Public Health is conferred after Examination on Graduates in Medicine of any University in the United Kingdom. Bursaries, Scholarships, Fellowships, and Prizes, are open to competition in this Faculty.

Students are required to begin study in the Winter Term, which commences in October. Those who desire to do so are required to submit applications for admission to the Secretary not later than 1st June.

The University also grants the following Degrees: In Arts—Doctor of Letters, Doctor of Philosophy, Master of Arts, Bachelor of Education; In Science—Doctor of Science, Doctor of Philosophy, Bachelor of Science (in Pure Science, Agriculture, Forestry, and Engineering); In Divinity—Doctor of Divinity (Honorary), Doctor of Philosophy and Bachelor of Divinity; In Law—Doctor of Laws (Honorary), Doctor of Philosophy, Bachelor of Laws (LL.B.), and Bachelor of Law (B.L.); In Commerce—Bachelor of Commerce (B.Com.).

A prospectus of the Classes, Fees, etc., may be had on application to the SECRETARY to the University.

H. J. BUTCHART, Secretary.

BETHLEM ROYAL HOSPITAL FOR NERVOUS AND MENTAL DISORDERS

Monks Orchard, Eden Park, Beckenham, Kent.

Reg. Tel. Address: BETHLEM, BECKENHAM

Telephone: SPRINGPARK 1180-1181

Station: EDEN PARK (Southern Railway)

President: VISCOUNT WAKEFIELD OF HYTHE, G.C.V.O.

Treasurer: Sir LIONEL FAUDEL-PHILLIPS, Bart.

Phy.-Sup.: J. G. PORTER PHILLIPS, M.D., F.R.C.P.

This Registered Hospital is situated at Monks Orchard in some 250 acres of park, pleasure and farm grounds.

Applications can be considered on behalf of patients of the educated classes in a presumably curable condition. With a view to early treatment, voluntary or uncertified patients are admitted.

Patients who can contribute 5 guineas weekly towards the cost of treatment and maintenance may be received as vacancies arise. The Committee will also consider applications for admission at lower rates and in certain cases will be prepared to admit patients free of charge.

The comfort of sensitive patients is greatly enhanced by the fact that the majority are given single bedrooms.

Treatment on Modern Principles.—Every facility for specialised investigation and treatment is provided in the Lord Wakefield of Hythe Science and Treatment Unit, including Radiological and Dental Departments, Bio-chemical, Pathological and Psychological Laboratories.

The Medical Staff have access to a panel of Consultants in cases which present unusual symptoms requiring specialised investigation and treatment.

Under the direction of qualified officers, Hello-therapy, Hydro-therapy and Electro-therapy are administered in the Physio-Therapy Department.

Special Treatment (Insulin, Cardiazol, Triazol, etc.) is given to suitable cases.

Occupational Therapy in the form of various Arts and Crafts is actively encouraged from the medical aspect, and under the guidance of a competent instructor this department has proved most effective as a therapeutic factor in all stages of mental illness.

The promotion of physical fitness is a prominent item of treatment, and this is enhanced by arrangements for patients to take part in Outdoor and Indoor Sports and Entertainments, and special attention is drawn to the physical drill and dancing classes, which form part of the regular hospital routine.

Application should be made to the Physician-Superintendent.

Kindly mention "The Hospitals Year-Book" when communicating with advertisers.

THE COPPICE, Nottingham, HOSPITAL FOR MENTAL DISEASES.

President—The Rt. Hon. LORD BELPER.

This Institution, for the reception of Private Patients of both sexes of the Upper and Middle Classes only, at moderate rates of payment, is beautifully situated in its own grounds about two miles from Nottingham, and from its singularly healthy and pleasant position, and the comfort of its internal arrangements, affords every facility for the relief and cure of those mentally afflicted. Occupational Therapy. Divine Service is held in the Institution every Sunday by the Chaplain, who also visits the Patients. Carriage exercise is provided. There is a branch Seaside Villa at Lowestoft.

For Terms, etc., apply to Dr. HUNTER, Medical Superintendent.

VOLUNTARY PATIENTS.—Patients are received without certificates who are in a condition to apply voluntarily for admission. This method is particularly applicable to persons in the commencing stages of mental or nervous disorder, since early treatment may ward off a serious attack, and avoid the necessity for certification. "Temporary" patients are also received.

Charitable Appeals.

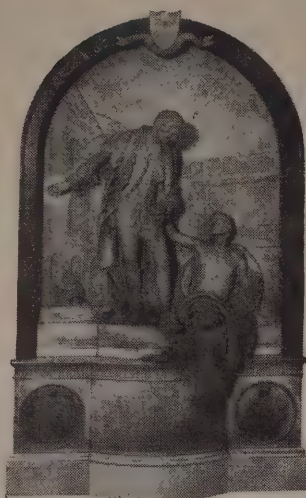

ON the following pages the Charities named below have given details of their particular and most pressing needs.

It is hoped that through the medium of this book part of their burden may be lightened. The greatest traditions of Voluntary Hospitals and indeed of all Charitable Bodies have been maintained in the past and will continue to be maintained in the future only by the personal interest and generosity of a multitude of sympathetic benefactors.

Charitably disposed people who realise the great work undertaken by the Voluntary Hospitals and kindred charities are asked to contribute towards its cost by Legacies, Donations or Annual Subscriptions.

The Secretaries of any of the Charities mentioned below will gladly supply further details regarding their work.

THE TOMB OF THE FOUNDER

"Dare quam accipere"

"Dare quam accipere," the motto of Guy's Hospital, sums up a policy of service to humanity which has been pursued for more than two centuries. Ceaselessly by day and by night—whatever the calls of the sick and suffering—the work of the Hospital has gone on in giving treatment for restoration of health and happiness.

That the world owes a debt of gratitude to this great national Hospital for the service it has given is beyond question. Four times only in two hundred years have the Governors appealed to the public for financial help. This time the appeal is desperate.

GUY'S HOSPITAL

We ask all men and women of good will to make a supreme effort to place Guy's Hospital on a financial footing that will ease its burdens. This can be done by becoming an Annual Subscriber (under deed of Covenant if desired) or by sending a donation, large or small. Please send now to the Rt. Hon. The Viscount Nuffield, Treasurer, Guy's Hospital, London Bridge, S.E.1.

MISS SMALLWOOD'S

SOCIETY FOR THE ASSISTANCE OF LADIES IN REDUCED CIRCUMSTANCES

UNDER ROYAL PATRONAGE

CAN YOU HELP OUR EMERGENCY FUND?

For over fifty years we have waged war against poverty and distress, and helped many poor ladies of gentle birth, some trying to exist on very little, who, alas, have neither strength nor skill to earn their own living; also relieved the anxious hearts of many poor sufferers and kept some from starvation and the workhouse, and looked after the old and sick, and tried to be a real friend to all. We may mention that a Legacy would be most useful, or a Donation to our General, Special, Coal or Shilling Fund. We feel sure there are many people who only need to be reminded of the wants of others to give generously.

DONATIONS AND NEW ANNUAL SUBSCRIPTIONS WILL BE THANKFULLY RECEIVED

Please make Cheques payable to:

The British and Foreign Bible Society

There are places in the world to-day from which MISSIONARIES HAVE BEEN WITHDRAWN and converts left unshepherded. In other places persecution is so severe that

PUBLIC WORSHIP IS FORBIDDEN.

In circumstances of this kind it is a consolation to remember that although these Christian people and new converts may be hindered from receiving other means of grace

THEY STILL HAVE THE WORD OF GOD IN THEIR OWN LANGUAGE.

The S.P.G., C.M.S., U.M.C.A., B.C.M.S., C.E.Z.M.S., S.A.M.S., and all other Church Missionary Societies look to the Bible Society for their Scriptures, and never look in vain.

Knowing that the Bible is a means of evangelisation and a source of instruction and inspiration for Christian life the Bible Society seeks to make it available for all men everywhere in their own tongue. Since its foundation in 1804 it has been used of God for the translation and circulation of the Scriptures in 732 Languages.

ROTUNDA HOSPITAL, DUBLIN

The Hospital contains 150 beds. Over 3,000 maternity cases and nearly 1,000 gynaecological patients are treated during the year. Besides the Hospital there is an extern Maternity Department with over 2,500 cases. The routine for students consists of attendance at the Morning Lectures on Midwifery and Gynaecology, examination of patients in the Gynaecological Departments, attendance at operations and all abnormal labour in the Hospital Wards, and conduction of labour cases in the intern and extern departments; a new large Ante-natal Clinic and Dispensary has just been added which gives increased facilities to Students, the Infants' Department is available also. The Pathological Laboratory has been considerably enlarged, and offers convenient facilities for practical work to Post Graduates and Students. There is a pregnancy-diagnosis station where the Aschheim-zondek test is carried out. The Bio-chemist is prepared to help any Post Graduate desiring to do research work on the material in the Hospital. There is a fully equipped X-ray installation under the care of a competent radiologist.

Qualified students are allowed to assist at the major and perform some minor gynaecological operations. The Hospital Courses are always going on during the year, and students can join at any time. The Class is limited, therefore it is advisable to register in advance. Board and residence can be obtained in the Hospital at £2 2s. per week.

Extra classes in gynaecological diagnosis and operative midwifery are conducted by the Assistants to the Master. One grass and two hard tennis courts and one standard squash racket court are available for students living in the Residents' Mess.

The L.M. Certificate is given to qualified practitioners on examination after six months' attendance at the Hospital. Fees: one month, £6 6s.; months other than the first, £4 4s.; Three months, £12 12s. L.M. Course, £21. Full particulars from ANDREW H. DAVIDSON, M.D., Master, Rotunda Hospital.

Incorporated by Royal Charter 1939

Patron: HIS MAJESTY THE KING

President: The Rt. Hon. VISCOUNT HALIFAX,
K.G., P.C., G.C.S.I., G.C.I.E.

Founded in 1902, under the direction of the Royal College of Physicians of London and the Royal College of Surgeons of England, as a centre for research and information on Cancer, the Fund is working unceasingly on the systematic investigation of the disease. Our knowledge has so increased that the disease is now curable in increasing numbers. We have recently built new modern laboratories at Mill Hill to extend the scope of our investigations.

LEGACIES ARE EARNESTLY SOLICITED

FORM OF BEQUEST

I hereby bequeath the sum of £ to the Imperial Cancer Research Fund (Treasurer, Sir Holburt Waring, Bart.), at Royal College of Surgeons of England, Lincoln's Inn Fields, London, W.C.2, for the purpose of Scientific Research, and I direct that the Treasurer's receipt shall be a good discharge for such legacy.

Honorary Consulting Surgeon:

W. SAMPSON HANDLEY, M.D., M.S., F.R.C.S., L.R.C.P.

Treasurer:

REGINALD ABEL SMITH.

This Hostel was founded in 1891. Its object is to provide a Home, where men and women in the last stages of illness, who, having seen better days, shrink from claiming the shelter of the County Hospital or Workhouse Infirmary and can appreciate very fully the refinement and comfort which we are able to give them, may end their days in peace carefully and tenderly nursed and surrounded by everything that can cheer them and alleviate their sufferings.

The Home is almost entirely dependent upon charity; it is absolutely free to all without distinction of creed or country.

Application for admission to be made to the Sister Superior, at: The Hostel of God, Lindfield, Sussex.

Cheques to be crossed "Messrs. HOARE, 37 Fleet Street, E.C.4," and made payable to "The Hostel of GOD."

A CAUSE worth Fighting For

Many worthy institutions have appealed to the public conscience for help. But surely none so humane as the crusade against Cancer. This dreadful disease claimed 74,000 victims last year alone.

YOU can help us to keep this number down. YOUR practical help given freely now will help us to continue the fight with unabated Treatment and Research which in these difficult times costs us more than ever.

Take an interest in this great cause, join us in the effort to discover knowledge, relieve the suffering, defeat despair, lower the death roll, win through to ultimate success.

The Northern Counties Hospital for Incurables

MANCHESTER

This Charity was established in 1872 to give permanent relief to such persons as are hopelessly disqualified for the duties of life by disease, accident, or deformity.

Candidates are elected half-yearly, in May and November, by the votes of the Life Governors and Subscribers.

There are two Homes:

Mauldeth Home, Heaton Mersey, near Manchester
(25 men and 55 women)

and

Robinson-Kay Home, Walmersley
House, Bury, Lancashire
(51 women)

The Charity largely depends on generous LEGACIES, Subscriptions and Donations, and more are earnestly solicited.

Annual Subscribers: 10s. 6d., One Vote; £1 1s. 0d., Two Votes; and so on in proportion.
Donors of £5 5s. 0d. become Life Governors, and receive One Vote at each Election.

CONTRIBUTIONS will be gratefully received by the Secretary, 4 Chapel Walks, Manchester, 2.
